Planners place restrictions on Banda's subdivision

by Arlene Surprenant

For the second time in two months, the Wilmington Planning Board took action to revoke lot releases on houselots remaining in a local subdivision.

On Tuesday, planners voted unanimously to revoke lot releases on seven lots in the Allenhurst Farm subdivision off Woburn Street to prevent further occupancy in the development. None of the lots have a certificate of occupancy nor were they purchased by a third party buyer. In June, the board took similar action on the Waterford Estates development.

There are three families currently living in the unfinished Allenhurst Farm subdivision. There are eight homes left to be built as well as other work like hot top on the main road that has to be done. Planners want all work completed to their specifications before other families move into the project.

Seveloper James Banda, Jr. was building the subdivision when his bonding company, United American Surety, went bankrupt leaving him without a bond to complete roadway and other work in the development.

At this week's board meeting, planners considered rescinding approval of the subdivision to force Banda's bank, the Lowell Five, to enter into a tri-party agreement to finish the work. Jim Hall, Lowell Five's attorney, said the bank has no intention of entering into such an agreement and picking up the entire $110,000 required as a bond by the town engineer. The bank already has invested $800,000 in the form of a first mortgage on the property.

Planners suggested that the bank might want to work something out with the town and developer to protect its investment.

"We didn't buy the risk of the bonding company; the planning board did," said Hall adding the financial burden of the roadway shouldn't fall on the bank.

"We're certainly not going to build roads," countered Carole Hamilton.

Hall said, in his interpretation of the Subdivision Control Act, if lots are sold or mortgaged in good faith, the board can't rescind the subdivision. His interpretation differs from that of Town Counsel Alan Altman who said the board could take one of three options: to rescind the subdivision, to ask the building inspector not to issue building permits on future lots in the project, or to revoke lot releases which places the original restrictions back on the parcels.

Hall said he understood the town's position and the need to take steps to protect its interest in the project. He suggested that the board waive such things as curbs and sidewalks to bring the bond cost down. Then, Hall added, the bank might be willing to pick up the remaining cost.

Hamilton said if the board reduced its standards and requirements, it could be setting " a very dangerous precedent" for other developers.

"There's some sort of middle ground here and it's not to rescind the plan," Hall said.

Banda said that according to his estimates, it would take about $70,000 to finish the road and remaining work. The town engineer based his $110,000 figure on state rates and the fact that the work would have to go out to bid. The original bond on the project was $120,000.

The board voted unanimously to revoke the lot releases. By doing that, members hoped to either force Lowell Five to agree to a tri-party arangement or to pave the way for a third party to take over the subdivision and place a new bond on the development. The restriction will only be removed and lots released for sale when the roadwork is finished. Board Chairman Dick Longo, who lives in the project, did not participate in any discussion or vote on the subdivision.

. . .while Concom gives him go-ahead

by Arlene Surprenant

Members of the Wilmington Conservation Commission last week voted unanimously to issue a certificate of compliance to a local developer despite the fact that he still had to do some filling work on one more lot.

Developer James Banda originally requested a partial certificate for four lots in the Allenhurst Farm subdivision off Woburn Street. The board unanimously granted that request on Wednesday. That same night Banda sought a one year extension to comply with an order of conditions on the entire project. Since the order lapsed in January, Commissioner Tom Roussell suggested the board rescind their earlier vote and issue a certificate of compliance on the entire project instead of granting an extension.

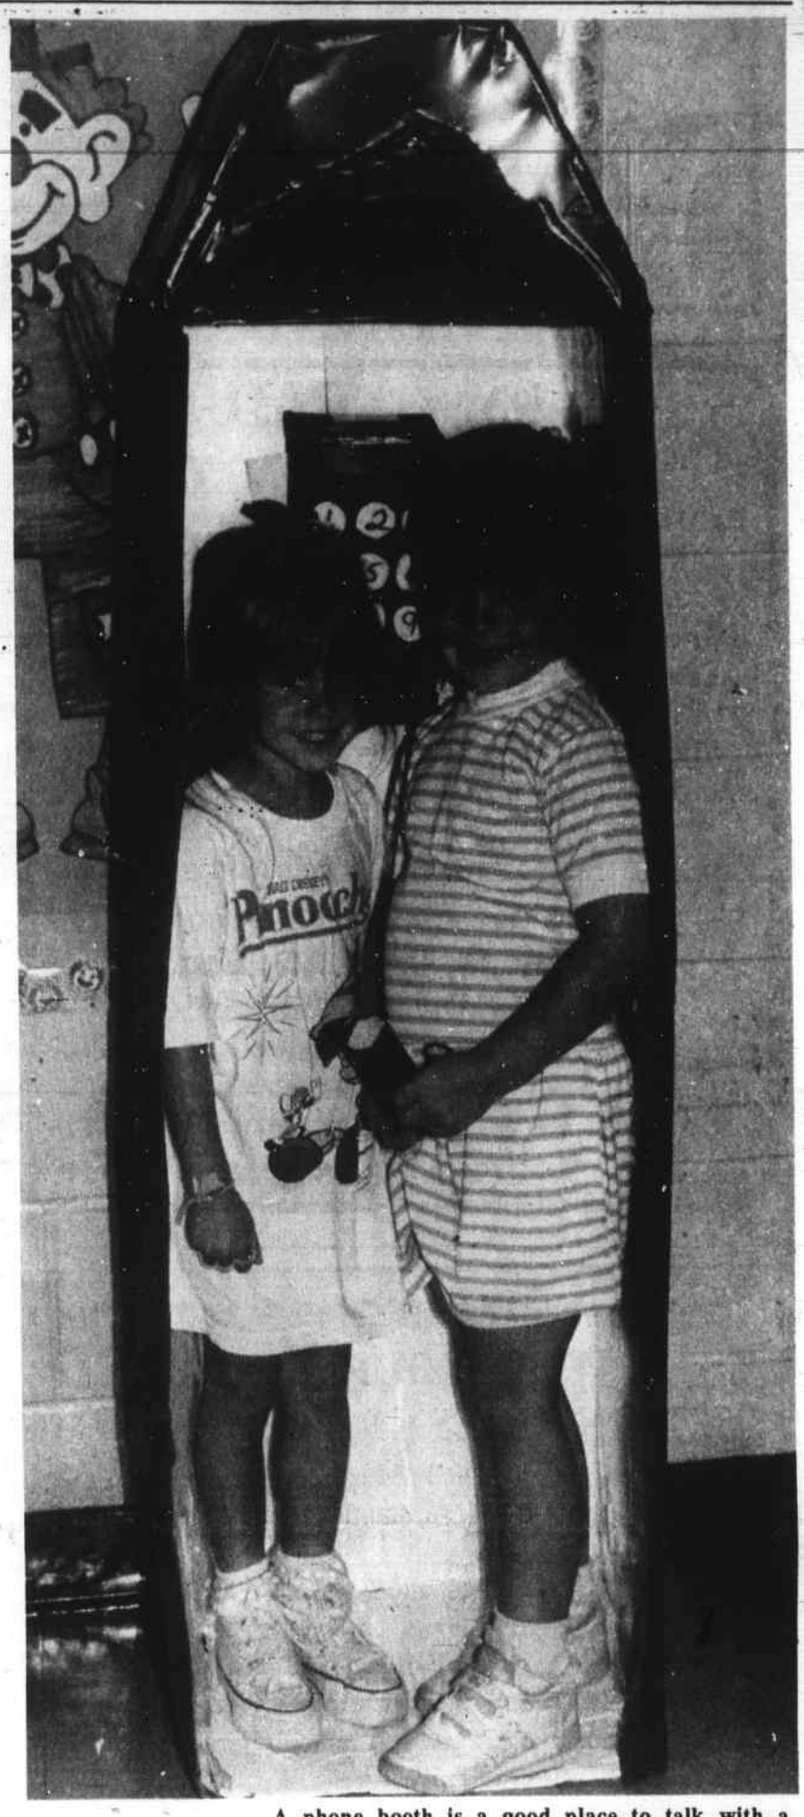

Roussell noted Banda had done all required work including putting up erosion controls and adding replication and detention areas. Roussell added that he trusted Banda to follow specifications on the remaining filling work on lot six.

"We know who we're dealing with. He will protect his word to the commission," said Roussell.

"But there's nothing in the paper record," said Conservation Administrator Eileen Chabot, referring to conditions that are placed on a project and kept on file until all work is complete.

Chairman Gary Mercer explained what the board will be doing, in effect, is closing out the project with the knowledge that Banda's plan will be followed. The board voted unanimously to issue the certificate. Absent from the meeting were Dennis Poltrino and Margaret Imbimbo.

In related business, commissioners requested that the conservation secretary, in the future, include a list of current orders of condition with their expiration dates in members' packets to avoid any problems. Mercer said the commission could get in trouble with the Department of Environmental Protection and waste a lot of time if orders are allowed to lapse.

A booth for both

Neighbors raise stink over plans for sewer pumping station

by Arlene Surprenant

Plans to build a wastewater pumping station in a utility easement near Park Street brought out about 20 residents opposed to the station at last week's meeting of the Wilmington Conservation Commission.

The pumping station is one of two slated to be built during the installation of 7.25 miles of sewer pipe in the Northeast Interceptor project. The second station will be located on Concord Street.

The new sewer line will service the eastern part of town from Main and Lowell Streets to West Street, Salem Street, Concord Street, Federal Street, Woburn Street, and the industrial area on Fordham Road. The route of the sewer line was originally outlined in the town's 1954 Master Sewer Plan.

Engineers from Fay, Spofford, and Thorndike, who are working on the project with the local water and sewer commission, came before conservation officials Wednesday on a notice of intent. According to figures prepared by Conservation Administrator Eileen Chabot, the proposed sewer line will impact 14 wetlands resource areas including 110,700 square feet of wetlands, 5,400 square feet of land under waterbodies and waterways, 5,400 square feet of banks, and 107,300 square feet of buffer zone.

The engineers assured commissioners they were trying to minimize impact to wetlands and conservation land and trying to keep the line as much as possible on town property. Money will be saved by putting the sewer line in now since water and sewer commissioners will be working closely with railroad officials, who are building a second rail line along part of the sewer route. The sewer project is expected to go out to bid in October.

Residents in the vicinity of Park Street questioned why the pumping station couldn't be located on another street like Concord Street or Fordham Road. They also questioned the reliability, proximity, and noise generated by such a station.

"Why so close to Park Street? Why Park Street, period?" asked Dan Ballou, Sr.

Project Manager Emile Hamway and Arthur Smith, chairman of the Water and Sewer Commissioners, explained Concord Street would be out of the question because of hydraulics. Smith added Concord Street is too close to marshlands which are the headlands of the Ipswich River. Hamway said engineers, however, could take a second look at the station's location.

Ida Rideout, of the Park Street Residents' Association, noted the pumping station would be located close to a brook feeding into Martins Pond. She said she feared industrial sewage would "bubble up" and spill out and affect the wetlands. She referred to a similar incident which she said occurred at the Pilcher Drive station off Salem Street.

Smith said that malfunction was due to a clogged sewer pipe and took place two and a half blocks from the pumping station. Water and Sewer Supt. Paul Duggan invited those present to visit the existing station. He added he has had no noise or odor complaints on that station.

Hamway assured commissioners and abutters there would be several safeguards built into the reinforced concrete station to be built below ground. He said the station would actually contain two pumps: one to handle all the sewage and one to act as a standby in case anything happens to the first pump. Hamway explained a diesel engine driven generator will automatically kick in if there is a power failure and high water alarms would be in place in case of an emergency.

"We have never had a mechanical failure in any of our systems," explained Smith. He went on to say the only real problem has been with vandals.

Conservation Commissioner Bill MacKinnon and Chairman Gary Mercer asked that the infiltration issue be addressed. Mercer explained if the ground water infiltrates into the sewer pipes from the town's aquifer system, Wilmington could lose some of its wetlands. Hamway admitted there would be some infiltration but that would be offset by water coming into the aquifer system from other areas. He said all pipes would be tested and maintained to "very stringent standards" to try to prevent problems.

Lorraine Ballou questioned the legality of locating the pumping station 180 feet from the nearest abutters. She said the Tambone Corporation, which formerly owned property where the Shriners' Auditorium is situated, promised abutters a 300 foot buffer zone.

"You're going back on a promise," she said.

Mercer explained the hearing would be continued to allow the board to digest the proposal and impacts to wetlands and wildlife

Why build it on Park Street?

by Larz F. Neilson

Why are the Water and Sewer Commissioners planning a sewage pumping station near Park Street?

Chairman Arthur Smith told the Town Crier that the sewer system works by gravity. Everything has to flow downhill, or else be pumped. Occasionally pumping stations are needed, but engineers try to avoid them unless they are absolutely necessary, because of the cost.

In the case of the Northeast Interceptor Sewer, the plans call for all sewage from the area east of Route 93 to flow downhill to the Park Street station. That station will then pump it through a force main uphill and across Route 93. Near the Woburn Street School, gravity will take over.

This means that some of Park Street will actually have sewage flowing two ways, once the area is completely sewered. A gravity main will serve the homes on Park Street, and carry the sewage downhill, to the east. The pumping station will then carry it uphill, to the west.

Although new streets have been added, the plan basically follows a Master Sewer Plan developed in 1954. That plan has not changed in its general concept of sewage flowing by gravity from one sector of town to another.

'Cherry sheet' shows $820k cut in state aid

by Arlene Surprenant

There were no real surprises in the "cherry sheets" received by Wilmington administrators last Wednesday, according to Town Manager Michael Caira.

The "cherry sheet" is a document issued by the Mass. Dept. of Revenue giving the total of estimated amounts a municipality will receive from the state. Printed on pink paper, the "cherry sheet" summarizes state assessments and charges, such as county assessments and MBTA assessments.

"In general, it was pretty much what we expected. We were right in the ball park," Caira told this paper Tuesday.

According to state figures, Wilmington will be receiving $820,000 less in state aid in fiscal 1992. That amount includes $220,000 already cut from the budget at the June town meeting, $10,000 in state assessments over FY 1991, and an additional $600,000 deficit already projected by the town manager.

Caira said it was significant that Wilmington received over $6.4 million in local aid in fiscal 1990 and the figure was reduced to $4.2 million for FY 1992. He said it was "incredible" that the town is being asked to sustain a $2.2 million reduction in only two short years. To offset the loss in state aid, Caira said town and school administrators have been forced into "downsizing," especially by not filling staff positions as they become vacant.

The local tax situation is still uncertain at this time since it is not known whether legislators will override Governor William Weld's veto of the tax overlay provision. Caira said he can only wait the situation out. However, he added, "there doesn't seem to be much hope in that direction."

ConCom seeks info on questionable lots

by Arlene Surprenant

Conservation commissioners in Wilmington were in a quandary last Wednesday over a proposal to build two homes with septic systems off Woburn Street.

Landowner Robert Scarano was before the commission at a continued public hearing on a notice of intent to develop his property. At past meetings commissioners, as well as Arthur Smith of the Water and Sewer Commission, raised questions on flooding problems in the area of nearby Hathaway Road, possible contami- nation to the Brown's Crossing wellfield, and impact to nearby wetlands.

Scarano said Wednesday he has tried to meet all of the board's concerns. He said he has provided more area for replication of the wetlands, he plans to build a clay barrier to prevent runoff and possible contamination problems, and he was willing to plant rose bushes as a buffer. When questioned, Conservation Administrator Eileen Chabot agreed a clay barrier could be effective in preventing runoff from flowing into Brown's Crossing.

Some commissioners, like Bill MacKinnon, said they were still "uneasy" over the project.

Arthur Smith had asked previously that the board not consider Scarano's proposal until his property is hooked into the new sewer line.

"This is not the appropriate time to be building; he has no city sewerage," argued Smith. He pointed out, too, the area often becomes "a lake" in the spring due to the high water table. Smith said Scarano's plan will just compound the existing flooding problem.

Scarano refuted the chairman's claim. He said soil analysis shows no sign of flooding in the area. He later added that any back-up of water was due to blocked culverts.

Tom Roussell said the commission needed time to review the botanist's report. He asked Smith to obtain facts to prove his claims about pollution and other impacts so the board could have some information to refute the data presented by Scarano and his engineer. Smith said his board's experts would review the site and impact of the development and get back to the commission.

The hearing was continued to August 21 at 7:30 p.m. at town hall.

Two apply for housing authority

by Arlene Surprenant

Two residents have so far applied for the vacancy on the Wilmington Housing Authority. They are Dot Butler of Deming Way and Al Meegan of Grace Drive. In addition, Town Manager Michael Caira said he had an unconfirmed telephone message that Realtor Anne Mahoney was also interested in the position.

The vacancy occured this month when Chairman Dave Fitzgerald submitted his resignation to the board after he was moved to another town.

Butler had expressed interest in serving on the board in the past. She had run a hard but unsuccessful campaign for the seat of incumbent Joan Sadowski in the last election. Selectmen and WHA members will get together August 12 to try to fill the vacancy. The person chosen will only serve until next April's election. If the successful applicant is interested in staying on the board for the remaining three years of Fitzgerald's term, he or she will have to run in that election.

In related business, Caira expects to fill a vacancy on the Conservation Commission by the end of the week. The vacancy was created by the resignation of veteran member and former chairman Don Ugolini.

Garden Club, DPW brighten up town

by Arlene Surprenant

Thanks to a cooperative effort by the Wilmington Garden Club and the Department of Public Works, Wilmington is becoming a more beautiful place.

Residents may have noticed tubs of flowers brightening up several roads and traffic islands. The colorful containers are presently gracing the vicinity of Shawsheen Avenue by Route 38, Hopkins and Nichols Streets and in North Wilmington at Woburn and Salem streets by the Harnden Tavern, the corner of High Street and Route 62, and at Middlesex Avenue and North Street. The tubs, actually half whiskey barrels, were provided by the DPW and are being maintained by the garden club under the direction of co-presidents Jean Hartka and Olive MacQuarrie. Floral arrangements include a sampling of geraniums, mums, marigolds, petunias, trailing vinca, and argeritum.

According to past club president Judy Johnson, the beautification program was started last summer with only four barrels and has expanded to eight tubs as well as window boxes and a floral "W" by the Fourth of July building.

The club's latest plans call for a tree nursery to be located on a piece of town land at the corner of Grove Avenue and Lake Street. Johnson said her organization is working on the project in conjunction with the DPW, the Conservation Commission, and the town engineer. Currently, an erosion fence is in place to prevent any negative impact to the nearby wetlands while work is proceeding to take out young trees on the property and relocate them to give them a better chance to mature. In addition, the town engineer is making a grid so members can tell how many trees can fit in the corner space. The nursery trees will be replanted, as needed, by public buildings and other areas of Wilmington. Eventually, shrubs will also be grown in the nursery.

The garden club has been active in the life of the community. Last year, for instance, the club planted flowers and hostas, a border plant, by the old West School in recognition of its acceptance on the list of historic places. The club, along with the DPW, will continue to beautify the small schoolhouse.

The garden club plans a full agenda for the upcoming year. The first major activity will be on October 24, when members will host a Silver Tea at the Wilmington Woods Nursing Home for garden club members in surrounding towns. Local residents with a green thumb or an interest in learning more about gardening are encouraged to join this active organization. Meetings are held the fourth Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the Fourth of July Building.

Town receives payment

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington this month received its semi-annual in-lieu-of-tax payment in the amount of $110,900.51 from the Reading Municipal Light Department. The payment covers the period from January 1, 1991 to June 30, 1991. According to Wilmington officials, the figure is approximately $10,000 less than what was expected.

In a letter to Town Manager Michael Caira, RMLD General Manager Leonard Rucker noted the total in-lieu-of-tax payments sent to the four member towns of Reading, North Reading, Lynnfield, and Wilmington was $174,591.51. Wilmington's share next December 31 will also be $110,900. The figures are based on the 1990 net worth of the utility plant. Rucker wrote the payments demonstrate the light company's support of the 20-year agreement signed by RMLD and the member towns.

It's YOUR Money

CAN YOU SAVE ON SOCIAL SECURITY TAXES?
Social Security taxes are taking an ever bigger chunk out of your income. The rate is up to 7.65 percent for employees and - worse yet - 15.3 percent for the self-employed. The wage base for this year is $53,400: the FICA reduction is taken for all income up to that figure.
However, higher income is not completely free of the Social Security tax bite. The Medicare portion of the 7.65 percent tax - 1.45 percent for employees, 2.9 percent for the self-employed - is taken out on income up to $125,000. The wage base for both taxes is expected to rise.
What you can do to save is to utilize as many adjustments to income as you can that reduce your taxable income. If you have a medical or dependent care reimbursement plan at work, any amount directed through that plan is not subject to Social Security tax. And if you are self employed, any expenses that you can deduct on your Schedule C - your business report - will cut your net income from your business and the Social Security tax due on it.

Blood sample

Rotarian (and water commissioner) Arthur Smith shows that drawing a little blood is "no problem" for a brave Marine. Nurse Karen Gray took a blood sample for a cholesterol test.

Cholesterol: It's in the blood

Any member of the Rotary Club of Wilmington who doesn't know what his or her cholesterol reading happens to be, just does not have an excuse.

The Rotary meeting of July 24 was in the hands of two young ladies from the Regional Health Center in Wilmington; Karen Gray, RN and Julie Daly, a registered dietician, had 44 Rotarians on hand, as they discussed high cholesterol, the causes and the tests.

Heart disease is the number one killer for adults, Julie Daly told the Rotarians. It reaches one in five males over the age of 60.

Heart disease can be controlled, she said. No smoking, keep your blood pressure down, and watch your cholesterol level. The cholesterol level should be 200 or less.

Eight years ago the rule was a cholesterol level of 210 plus in age, Julie told the club. Two years ago that was changed by a big push to get the cholesterol level below 200.

The thing that makes a good cholesterol level better, she said, is exercise. Cut down your weight, cut down your sugar, and cut down your alcohol. Reduce your intake of red meat, eggs, and whole milk.

Animal fats, high cholesterol, should not be eaten, no red meat, no eggs. Saturated fats, coconut and palm oil, solid at room temperature, are bad for your heart.

Polyunsaturated fats are good for your heart. You have to watch for the total fat in your diet. It is quite complicated.

You are still getting cholesterol in baked goods like crackers and potato chips. The manufacturer may use terms on the container for potato chips which will convince you it is good to eat, but you are not getting good food.

Daly discussed some foods. Doughnuts and potato chips did not seem to be highly thought of. They contain saturated fat.

Big Macs, popular in a certain type of restaurant, were on her No No list. There are 35 grains of fat to be found in them. Today there is a new Diet Lean hamburg being served. It has twelve to fifteen grains of fat, but the body still converts fat to cholesterol.

Daly's advice to the Rotarians: To reduce saturated fat in the diet substitute fish, poultry, lean meats, whole grain breads and cereals, fruits, vegetables,dried peas and beans for food high in fat.

Karen Gray, RN, was also a busy lady. Karen is a state approved tester for high cholesterol in the blood, and she had her testing machine with her.

Among other things Karen has been testing young people, in the elementary classes of Wilmington, for their cholesterol levels.

The tests each take three minutes. Karen pricks the finger of her subject and squeezes a little blood, to be tested. All the tests are accurate, the Rotarians were told.

The visit by Julie and Karen to Wilmington Rotary was the first in a number of visits to be made, by personnel from the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, a part of Winchester Hospital. The Rotarians were told they could look forward to visits of about once a month from the Regional Health Center.

habitat.

"We want to make sure no one comes back and says that was a poor choice 20 years from now," he said.

A site walk of the proposed route was scheduled for August 4. The hearing was continued to August 7. abutters were invited to address their concerns in writing before the next meeting.

One patient was transported to Winchester Hospital and one did not require transport. There were four calls for medical aid. Three patients were transported to Winchester Hospital. One patient required the paramedics during transport. One medical aid call was to Tewksbury and was canceled enroute. There was one fire alarm assistance call.

Sunday, July 21

Fire apparatus responded to one brush fire.

Monday, July 22

There was one medical aid call and patient was transported to the Lahey Clinic with the paramedics. There was one oil burner inspection completed.

Tuesday, July 23

Fire apparatus responded to one telephone alarm and one box alarm. There was one response for outside burning. There were two MVAs. Neither required transport. There was one response for a stove fire and two calls for medical aid. One call was mutual aid to Tewksbury. The patient was transported to St. John's Hospital and one medical aid call did not require transport.

Wednesday, July 24

Fire apparatus responded to three box alarms on Ballardvale Street, one brush fire, and one dumpster fire. There were two MVAs and transport was not required at either scene. There was one response for a gas spill. There were five calls for medical aid. One patient was transported to the Lahey Clinic. Three were taken to Winchester Hospital.One patient required the paramedics on board. One medical aid call was to Tewksbury and patient was taken to St. John's Hospital. There were five smoke detector inspections completed and five fire alarm assistance calls.

Thursday, July 25

Fire apparatus responded to one MVA. There was no service required at the scene. There were two fire alarm assistance calls.

Friday, July 26

Fire apparatus responded to one telephone alarm, one car fire, and two MVAs. Neither MVA required transport. There was one medical aid call and patient was transported with the paramedics to Winchester Hospital. There was one smoke detector inspection and three fire alarm assistance calls.

Attic fire

Firemen were able to quickly extinguish a fire on Sunday morning at 153 Aldrich Rd., Wilmington, the home of the Dennis Runco family. Fire damage was restricted to the attic, but smoke and water caused additional damage to the house. The photo shows a water stream coming from the attic, with a rainbow across the first floor windows.

Town to apply for small cities grant

by Arlene Surprenant

The Town of Wilmington is applying for a Small Cities Grant which could provide up to a million dollars in benefits to low or moderate-income residents.

According to Planning Director Lynn Duncan, the Small Cities Grant program is one of the few remaining such programs around. The program is funded by federal dollars which are funneled through the state Executive Office of Communities and Development.

Duncan told members of the Wilmington Planning Board Tuesday the money is to be used to benefit low and moderate-income residents of a community. The funds can be used in several ways: to rehabilitate housing to provide decent living conditions, for social service activities, for public infrastructure tied to housing rehabilitation, and for economic development activities like loan programs.

According to Town Manager Michael Caira, Wilmington hopes to use the grant to help homeowners who meet the income guidelines to renovate or otherwise take care of their homes. In addition, because of the high rate of unemployment in town, Caira hopes to obtain funds to address that problem. He told this paper he would like to help unemployed residents by building up their interview skills, helping residents network, and establishing a local job bank, among other things.

"There's no guarantee we'd get the grant. However, I'm pretty confident we can make a good case for qualifying," the manager said.

Duncan asked members of her board to accompany her to the selectmen's meeting on August 12 to go over the proposed uses for the funds. She said a tentative public hearing has been set for August 29 to discuss the grant application in more detail.

Planners said they support the application, especially since it means the town is taking an active approach rather than a reactionary approach to a problem.

frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Governor William F. Weld was flanked by his public health echelon in Roxbury on Monday as he initiated, true to his campaign pledge, a plan to make condoms available in Massachusetts public schools, part of a comprehensive sex education curriculum focusing on sexually-transmitted diseases.

Ironically, some political observers attribute Weld's G.O.P. convention loss last year to his support for condom distribution. But today, the Weld agenda of fiscal conservatism and social liberalism is gaining grassroots momentum, and the progressive concept of counseling sexually-active teenagers with real protection may be overshadowing the morality plays of days gone by, especially as sexually transmitted diseases among teens rises dramatically.

Weld's home of Cambridge is the only Bay State school system where condom distribution occurs. The governor announced Monday that a pilot program will begin shortly in Lowell where condoms will be distributed on a voluntary basis. The Weld program is predicated on local option. "We believe in empowerment, giving people options," said the governor as he launched the Teen Health Program.

Joining Weld at the Monday health campaign kick-off were "peer leaders" from around the state. The Teen Health Program incorporates peer leadership, whereby trained students reach out to fellow classmates and educate on how to avoid sexually transmitted diseases. One fifth of all current AIDS cases contracted the virus during their teens according to the Department of Public Health. The Weld Administration is so concerned with this impending health crisis that they've appointed a new adolescent health coordinator, Richard Taffel, introduced to the public by Governor Weld on Monday.

But can government sell the idea of condom distribution in suburbia?

"Communities that feel they have immunity are mistaken", said Public Health Commissioner Dr. David Mulligan in an interview with the Town Crier. "Sexual disease is in every town in the Commonwealth," he said, noting that the number of teens infected with the AIDS virus is growing, and syphilis and gonorrhea are at "very high levels among young people."

The advocates of 'traditional values' have argued steadfastly that any comprehensive condom distribution program can only have a destructive impact, encouraging the same permiscuous behavior causing the diseases we wish to avoid. But the public health commissioner, agreeing that "abstinence is the preferred choice," said that "We need education programs for those that are active." Said Mulligan, "There is a serious problem here and we can't hide our heads in the sand."

Will Protect Teen Health be coming to Wilmington? "Clearly the demographics of the suburban school systems are vastly different from those of the urban areas," said Superintendent Bill Fay. True. Cambridge is different from Wilmington, and Roxbury is a far cry from Tewksbury. But statistics, such as the 35 percent increase in teen pregnancy state wide, may tip the scales of traditional teachings and reality, in realty's favor. Our inability to talk about sex has to give way to the reality of what will happen if we don't.

Briefly in Politics . . .

Tewksbury Selectman Tom Camara might need a local civics lesson. The unabashed board member dug into Conservation Commission Chairman Bill Hallisey last week, voting against Hallisey's reappointment because Tewksbury has the "sixth worst record" in the state for "filling and loss" of wetlands. But under Massachusetts law the conservation commission grants permits only for construction within 100 feet of wetlands. Special permits to fill are approved by the selectmen only. Hallisey was reappointed on a 3-2 vote as Ann Looney joined Camara's dissent, exclaiming "outrageous" when she lost the vote.

Wilmington Appeals Board associate member Louis Farkas, Jr. just said no. Tabbed last week for full membership on the board, Farkas joins colleague John Garrett in refusing to fill the shoes of Neil Buckley. Buckley was unexpectedly demoted by the selectmen on June 24, triggering a whirlwind of controversy. Farkas has reportedly authored a letter to the selectmen similar to that delivered by Garrett last week, praising Buckley and calling for reinstatement of the veteran board member. Selectman Mark Haldane unsuccessfully moved for that reconsideration at his last board meeting, and said this week that he'll try again should Farkas formally turn down the post.

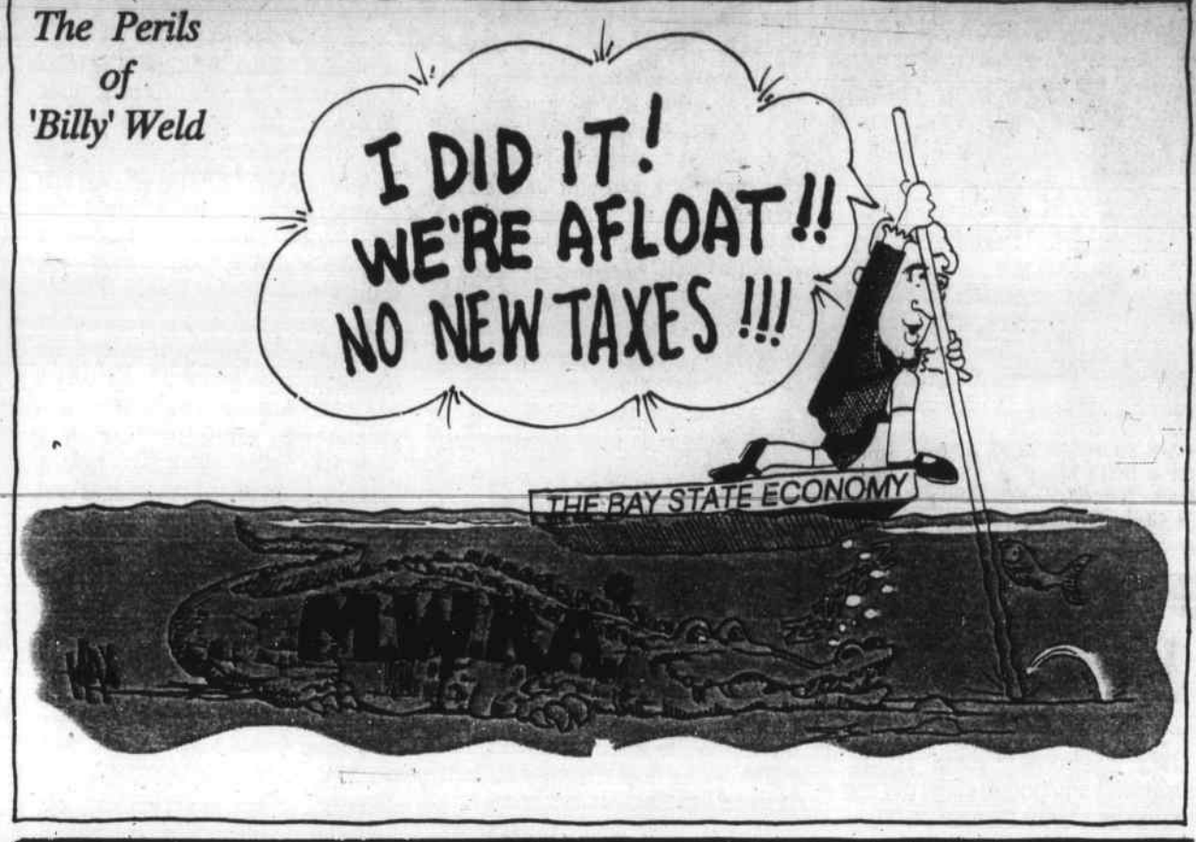

A last-minute legal threat against the Town of Tewksbury may have been the reason for tabling a high appointment at the fire department. The June 11 selectmen's agenda scheduled the appointment of George Yost as fire captain, succeeding John Cuneo who recently retired. But at the last minute Town Manager David Cressman tabled the appointment, reportedly due to a letter received from Yost's attorney the day before. The letter threatened litigation if Yost were not promoted. "Cressman does not want the appearance that the appointment was made because of an attorney's threat," said a source at town hall.

Meanwhile, other public safety promotions are up for grabs at the Tewksbury Police Department where four sergeants will be appointed from a civil service list of nine qualified patrolmen.

A hearing was held last Friday at Cambridge Superior Court on the appeal by Mike McCoy to dismiss assault and battery charges filed by the district attorney. The charges stem from an alleged assault by McCoy against Selectman Bob Cain, hospitalized on November 13, 1989 for a broken nose, bruises and lacerations. The judge took McCoy's appeal under advisement and is expected to issue a decision shortly.

Were the protestations of Wilmington Selectmen Chet Bruce and Mark Haldane heard on Beacon Hill this week? Just as the local leaders were condemning recent pay raises at the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA), lawmakers in Boston have decided to try to take matters into their own hands. Senators Christopher Lane (R) and Paul Harold (D) have filed a bill to castrate the all-powerful MWRA board of directors, transferring budget authority to the 68 member advisory board and requiring the Department of Public Utilities to approve all rate changes. Fifty legislators have already jumped on board, and Wilmington State Senator Bob Buell (R) said he will offer an amendment which could save the town substantially on sewer fees. "My main gripe is that Wilmington is assessed on a per capita basis rather than a household basis. It is grossly unfair," said Buell.

The Perils of 'Billy' Weld

letters to the editor

Open letter to the Chief of Police

Dear Sir:

I am concerned because o f your department's charge against a set of Wilmington parents for serving their son alcohol. Let me preface my problem with a family history as it relates to my 19-year-old son and his drinking attitude.

He did not learn from his parents that beer and/or alcohol needed to be an important and necessary part of his life.

The last time his father had a six-pack in our refrigerator was pre-1970. He was born 1971. I have had wine here at home, and he has certainly observed my enjoying a glass of wine after work and before bed. It was not an abuse. Even that has ceased during the last three years.

We do not socialize or entertain friends or family with alcohol.

In short, my son's attitude about drinking was not learned at home, but he is certainly bringing it home.

He and a few of his friends will hang out in my driveway. They are not very noisy. I have heard of no neighbor complaints. Rarely are they here after midnight. In short, I have not heard they are a problem.

My problem, however, is they have beer with them. They do not ask my permission. I do not buy it for them. It gets into their hands, and they bring it here. I have asked my son to get it out of here. It keeps coming back somehow, through someone.

Tell me, how do I protect myself from criminal charges from your department? Will you help me police my private property?

I will be very glad to call the Police Department whenever I observe this from this point on, and you can help my husband and me assert parental control over our young adult male child and friends if that is your advice.

We (my son and I, because I love him very much and care about the direction he takes) have a $2,000 car insurance bill each year to register a $100 car, because the Police Department has hit him with speeding tickets for being five miles over the limit, 10 miles over and 15 miles over on one occasion. The overall penalty for these offenses is excessive. He was penalized again for not being able to afford safety equipping a car, and then another debatable incident about an unregistered vehicle. He says he had another day to get it registered; your man said he did not. My son did not know how to protect himself through our system with the appeals process, and his parents were tied down to another problem. This month he was stopped for driving while under. An unbiased third party observed the tape the officer took during the arrest and said it was a borderline call as to his being drunk. The lawyer advised a guilty plea to assure only a six month license suspension. It's this family's opinion that my son has been harassed by your department.

I would very much like to have the opportunity to see this tape along with my son. Please let me know if this can be arranged.

Therefore, any social services your department can provide me will be greatly appreciated. As of today, any Proposition 2 1/2 override for the Police Department has a "NO" vote from me.You cost me too much already. When "I read his lips," it said "No more taxes." I didn't realize that left a free reign for all kinds of fines and users' fees and other creative financing methods. We are a family that was hit with the Massachusetts bust in 1988 and trying to make recovery. I cannot tell whether my son is impeding our recovery or whether it's the Wilmington Police Department.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,
(name withheld by request)

PS: I'd gladly show my name on this letter, but I know what happens in Wilmington from a previous experience where I felt it important to voice an opinion or thought. My phone number is published, and I would hear from other's through the telephone rather than the press.

I wish I was the only influence in this young man's life. Unfortunately, I'm not.

Dear Larz:

I would like to thank Senator Robert Buell of Boxford for his recent vote in the Massachusetts Senate in favor of an amendment offered by Senator Brian Lees (R-East Longmeadow) on the important subject of prescription drug abuse.

Prescription drug abuse is a serious concern in Massachusetts. Statistics show that over one third of the drug abuse related visits to Massachusetts hospital emergency rooms have been the result of the abuse of legal prescription drugs. The United States Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) states that "Abuse of prescription drugs results in more injuries and deaths to the American people than result from all illegal drugs combined."

During the recent debate in the Massachusetts Senate on the Fiscal Year 1992 budget, Senator Lees proposed an amendment that would begin to address this problem in Massachusetts by establishing an effective prescription monitoring system that would cover both Schedule II and Schedule IV drugs, which are the most widely abused, and the most addictive prescription drugs.

The amendment would have established an electronic prescription monitoring system that would utilize a special serialized prescription pad for the effected drugs. Similar prescription systems have been utilized in other states with much success. These prescription monitoring systems have resulted in a great reduction in the use of illegal and forged prescriptions which are often sold "on the streets," while not affecting the legitimate users of prescription drugs.

Senator Buell should be applauded by the citizens in his district for voting in favor of this amendment. While the proposal was defeated during the budget process, there is legislation pending in the Senate Ways and Means Committee which could be amended to provide Massachusetts with an effective prescription monitoring system to help stop the abuse of prescription drugs. Now that the budget process has been completed, I urge the Legislature to act on the important public health and public safety issue of prescription drug abuse.

Sincerely,

Dear Larz:

It has come to my attention that the Town of Wilmington has recently become "anti-goose" and I suspect that this latest hysteria has been instigated by Lucy Goose and backed by persons who are sometimes referred to as Silly Gooses or Goosy Gooses. These hybrid type geese can be a real pain in the tail feathers whenever they can find anything locally to honk about. I suspect that they are secretly jealous of us real pure bred geese who try to live with a free spirit and are probably the only surviving true "liberals."

We are all aware of the hybrid type geese who think that they own and control everything that nature provides on this earth and who consider us as free-loaders and welfare cases, always looking for a little handout. But we have never let their narrow concepts bother us a bit. I remember the great old days at Norembega Park, site of the Totem Pole Ballroom where people danced, loved and enjoyed themselves. We geese were considered a pleasant diversion and outdoor entertainment, we were appreciated and loved by everyone.

Your world obviously has become a lot smaller and meaner since then. I guess we "gooses" have had our heads under water too long, believing that the hybrids were too busy nipping and shooting at each other to ever pick on us. And speaking of pollution, we never had a problem until your semi-civilized types messed up this world - not us.

A cannon yet! and a gaggle of officials - Boom - Boom - Boom! Ho, Ho, Honk, Honk, Honk! Where's the uniforms, dark glasses and flags? Loosen up - how about a little martial music? What ever happened to the disciples of Henry David Thoreau? Live and let live? Bottoms up- -

For the birds,
Mother Goose

Board of Selectmen
Town Hall
Tewksbury, MA 01876

Gentlemen:

I feel obligated to respond to the remarks made by Mr. Camara at the July 23, 1991 meeting of your Board with respect to the appointments of the Conservation Commisison.

First of all I want to acknowledge that your Board has a right to make appointments. They even have the right to appoint their friends. As the old saying goes, "To the victor belongs the spoils."

But no member of your Board, namely Selectman Camara, has the right to lie and attack the reputations of honest, decent, civic minded individuals whose only mistake is not conforming to the distorted, and often bizarre, views and opinions of Selectman Camara.

Initially I would like to reply to Mr. Camara's statement that the Tewksbury Conservation Commission has the sixth worst reputation in the State for filling of wetlands. That is a lie. The Tewksbury Conservation Commission does not allow or condone the filling of wetlands. Mr. Camara should be advised that wetland hearings are conducted by the Board of Selectmen.

I call upon Mr. Camara to come forward with any cases where I voted to fill wetlands in the Town of Tewksbury and if he can not, I demand an apology.

As your Board is aware, I have been a citizen of the Town of Tewksbury for most of my life. I have had the honor to serve as a call fireman and as a member of the police department for 25 years. I have considered it an honor to have served on the Conservation Commission for the past six years, with no salary I might add, because I wanted to give something back to a Town that has meant a great deal to me. I, and my family, have always enjoyed an excellent reputation and Mr. Camara has the distinction of being the only town official to have attempted to cloud this reputation. This is not new for him. He managed to destroy the character of scores of public officials during his infamous tenure as a member of the Board of Selectmen. He has continually whined, complained and threatened them with state and federal investigations when they refused to buckle under to his somewhat peculiar way of thinking. He is continually accusing people of what he is actually doing himself.

In closing, I would like to advise Mr. Camara that I stand ready to defend myself and to debate this issue at a Selectmen's meeting or any other public forum. Again I would ask that he come forward with evidence of any example of my condoning the filling of wetlands and as the old saying goes, Mr. Camara, "put up or shut up."

Very truly yours,
Richard J. Hanson

Teenagers

At the fairwell party at the Tewksbury Methodist Church each student was awarded a certificate of completion for the English study course. They presented a plant to each family and they all sang around the piano as Diego played. (l. to r. front) Diego, Maria, an unidentified American sibling, Iciar, Amaya and Sophia. (rear) Pau, Guillermo, Angela (group leader), and Pedro.

The Spanish invasion

by Stu Neilson

The month is over. During the last four weeks I have attempted to put together a story on the visit of 27 Spanish students to Tewksbury and Wilmington. They've gone home.

They're arrival was without fanfare. They emerged from the bus, one by one. The host families stood holding signs with their names, some with plain block letters, others were quite elaborate. "Welcome home, Diego!" was one. It still hangs of the front porch of a home on Chandler Street, Tewksbury. Diego has gone home again to Pamplona.

On the day of their arrival my friend Jim warned me of his experience a few years back. He found the students would keep to themselves. They conversed exclusively in Spanish, he said. He admonished that teenagers are teenagers and this one would be no different. I would need an iron fist and a diverse program to keep her entertained.

One student was not yet placed in a home. I prevailed upon Jim. Silvia came to stay for three weeks. Jim's daughter Allyson and Silvia became close friends.

On Monday after missing the bus departure in Tewksbury, Jim made a fast trip to Logan to see his "Spanish daughter" off. They had been bumped up to an earlier flight, he missed her again. His heart was broken again.

The organizer, Jodi Templer had provided at least three field trips each week. The students had English classes every weekday morning. There were cookouts and dances. There was the Fourth of July.

Trips included the National Historic Park in Lowell, George's Island in Boston Harbor, Harvard Square, Water Country and Hampton Beach. During free days many of the families got together and went to North Conway, Newburyport and Salem. Some of the favorite destinations were the Burlington Mall, Pheasant Lane Mall, Liberty Tree Mall, Downtown Crossing, Tewksbury Funland and McDonalds.

For information on hosting a student call (617) 267-0058

My friend was right. Teenagers are teenagers. But, I'm convinced some are better than others. After hosting a cookout/water balloon war, I can say that the house is still standing. There were 20 or so Spanish teens, an equal number of Americans and several parents. The temperature was in the nineties. The kitchen floor was two inches deep in mud. The back yard was deeper. Then they cleaned it all up.

As the afternoon wore on, the parents started wondering how to fill the time. They would be happy to sit and sip iced coffee and lemonade, but the teens? Inside, Diego was at the piano and they all sang along for two hours!

They sang traditional Spanish songs, Rock and Roll, Christmas carols, The Star Spangled Banner and Yankee Doodle in Spanish. MTV was silent.

But enough of the group. Leonor Medel Fernandez is 15 and a half. She has long brown hair and a very sweet smile, which she wears most of the time. Quiet, polite, shy – she is everything you would expect from a teenager visiting a strange home for the first day.

Spanish culture is different. Daughters aren't expected to grow up at 9 years old. Leonor had no idea how to cook a hamburger, and doing her own laundry was difficult but she didn't make up her mind not to try.

Leonor is a teenager. She stayed up late at night finishing her homework, which was due in the morning. She loves MTV, movies and ice cream. Looking at old buildings, boring English classes and squeezing in and out of the back seat of my Toyota are the things she's likely to try to forget.

This is Leonor's second trip to America. Last year she visited San Francisco in July. She said she was disappointed. They do not do the Fourth of July in California.

We do. We dressed her in 18th century clothing and took her to the Boston Fourth of July parade, the turning of the Constitution, the fireworks in Wilmington. She didn't understand it all, but she didn't say "No!" My American daughter might have.

Perhaps she will look back in 20 years and laugh. I will.

At the bus in Tewksbury everyone was crying. We'll probably never see these kids again. A card and a couple of phone calls and they will get on with their lives. They have friends and family they haven't seen in a month. They had a wonderful time.

So did I.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

How will the residents of Wilmington deal with our waste disposal problems as we head toward the year 2000? The Wilmington Recycling Advisory Committee is investigating this very issue and will make a recommendation for a course of action at an October 1991 Board of Selectmen meeting.

To assist this investigation, the committee is looking at as many alternatives as possible. These include curbside collection of recyclables and a drop-off center for recyclables; mandatory compared to voluntary curbside collection; and sticker programs to replace the present waste pickup scheme. The goal is to improve our current program and fully serve the needs of the community in the future while controlling costs for rubbish disposal.

One essential objective in formulating these recommendations is receiving as much input from residents as possible. The committee wants to know what you think. I ask that you please contact the Wilmington Recycling Advisory Committee no later than August 31, 1991 with your comments and suggestions so that we may review them for inclusion in our proposal. You may mail your comments marked "Recycling Program" to Town Hall, 121 Glen Road, Wilmington, MA 01887 or call 508-658-3311 ext. 315 to speak with me.

With your help I believe the Recycling Advisory Committee can be more informed and make better recommendations. Thank you for your time and I hope to hear from you soon.

Jeffrey M. Hull, Chairman
Wilmington Recycling
Advisory Committee

Living proof that a heart attack can save your life.

When Tom DiNuccio was wakened by sharp chest pains, he thought, like so many victims of a heart attack, that it was the end. On the contrary, it was just the beginning. The beginning of a new way of life that would give Tom something very precious—a second chance.

Though he was only 44 years old, everything about Tom's life had put him at risk. Too much stress. Too little exercise. Too little awareness of a healthy diet. Basically, he lived like most of us do. But having a heart attack saved Tom's life. Motivated by fears of a reoccurrence, he came to New England Memorial's Cardiac Rehabilitation Program. Here, Tom was introduced to new ways of thinking, eating, exercising, and coping with stress that have become the foundations for a whole new lease on life.

And because having a heart attack at such a young age—at any age—is a real psychological blow, Tom's rehab included valuable counseling and support that, in his words, "Helped me get on track and made me want to help myself."

Today, when asked what his special interests or hobbies are, Tom's answer is simple: "I enjoy life." Living proof that cardiac patients who want a second chance really take our advice to heart.

Backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg

The inch and a quarter of rain over the weekend was a boon to gardeners, after a long hot dry spell. Hose watering is fine, but can never completely substitute for a good soaking rain.

A Wilmington gardener writes in part, "...every year about this time I have a problem with blossom end rot on my Big Boy tomato plants. I know you touched on this last year, but I'm still not clear on what causes this annoying problem, and what can be done to avoid it. Any clarification you can offer will be appreciated."

Blossom but rot is a very common non parasitic disorder with tomatoes. I categorize it as short term aggravation as opposed to a major problem, since blossom end rot will spoil a few tomatoes, but will not damage the plants. A water soaked spot first appears at the blossom end (as opposed to the stem end) of the tomato when the fruit is about half sized. The spot swells and browns until it covers a third or more of the surface, after which the infected area turns blackish and leathery. This problem characteristically strikes during or just after a long dry spell, and sometimes appears after rainy periods.

A calcium deficiency is the chemical cause of the trouble, but this condition is aggravated by excessive water or nitrogen. If you have not checked your soil Ph for several years, do so soon. If your soil measures less than a Ph of 6.0, conditions are further enhanced for the appearance of blossom end rot. If your soil is found to be too acid (meaning below 6.0) use about half a pound of ground limestone (which contains calcium) per square feet to raise the reading one unit. Such an application will last for three years. One further suggestion; the Big Boy types of tomatoes are rather succeptable to this problem. Next spring, plant a variety which is resistant to b.e.r., and those include Olympic, Summer Prolific and Flora-Dade.

Still on tomatoes, a Tewksbury gardener called the other evening to say that the flower blossoms on her plants have been dropping off just as they are maturing. What, she asks, can she do to achieve fruit set? This condition is referred to appropriately enough as blossom drop. Also not uncommon, this problem may occur where soil moisture is low and plants are subjected to unusually hot, drying winds. Such conditions can prevent blossoms from setting fruit. Large fruited types, such as the common beefsteak varieties are especially succeptable to blossom drop under such conditions. This is usually a short term problem, which tends to disappear when temperatures and soil and moisture conditions come into balance. If you are not already doing so, spray your tomato flowers with a synthetic hormone - "Blossom Set" is a good one, available in most garden centers - and I'm sure you'll see a difference immediately.

All in all, this has been a good growing season for tomatoes and most gardeners are now producing nice looking fruits.

25 years ago

The August 4, 1966 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Danny Gillis made a dramatic exit from the planning board meeting vowing to take a month's vacation. He was back again Tuesday night, feeling chipper and full of business.

Dr. John Silvers of Salem Street was appointed manager of the planning program for Avco Corporation's Space Systems Division.

Francis Mulholland, Jr. a student at Northeastern University in Boston was at Fort Dix undergoing training with his school's reserve officer training corps unit.

Kevin Field, (of Miller Road) a pitcher for the Wilmington Tradesmen in the Carling League, pitched a perfect game against the Waltham Team and lost the game 1-0...?

Lucci's market offered five legged or breasted chickens for 38 cents a pound; London broil for 89 cents a pound and sirloin or cube steak, 88 cents.

Stephen Berecz and Co., Inc. moved to its new location on Main Street, south while several other local businesses sponsored welcoming ads.

Kevin McKelvey, WHS, '66 of Border Avenue enlisted in the Army and was undergoing training at Fort Dix, N.J.

The IRS, Lawrence placed an ad offering card punch operators an opportunity to step up to $75 a week, with no experience necessary.

Diamond Crystal, promoted Frank L. Mugford of Main Street to a position as manager of sales administration.

Elia's Market offered peaches, zucchini squash and bananas at 10 cents a pound; large blueberries, 29 cents a pint and beef for shis-kabob, 69 cents a pound.

Hair is the Total You

By Linda Gaffey

A MILDER MANNER

Many women wrongly assume that the best way to deal with oily hair is to combat it with a strong, detergent shampoo. This strategy, however, usually produces the opposite effect to the one desired. Once stripped entirely of all its oil, the scalp will tend to overcompen- sate in its oil production in an attempt to make up for the loss. As a result of this "rebound effect," a person with very oily hair engages in a vicious cycle of oil-stripping shampoos and oil-gland overproduction. A more sensible strategy for control over oily hair calls for the use of a mild shampoo. This product will leave a trace of oil on the scalp and promote a healthy balance between clean hair and an oily scalp. The application of a conditioner to the ends of hair will also help overcome the dryness associated with combination hair.

Most women wash their hair daily so it is especially important to be using the best products for your specific hair type. Let us recommend which shampoos, conditioners, etc. are best for you at Shawsheen Hair Salon, 161 Shawsheen Ave., Rt. 129, Wilmington, (508) 658-9475. Hours: open six days and nights of the week, closed Sun. Let us introduce you to our line of Matrix hair care products, like Vavoom by Matrix, for fullness and styling ease. Our salon uses only environmentally safe products. M/C and Visa are welcome.

Alternate Action Shampoo by Matrix is recommended for oily hair.

HINT: Mild shampoos with high rinsibility are less likely to attract dirt and contribute to the look of oily hair.

Strong start

Wilmington Major League All-Star pitcher Melissa Merrill concentrates on putting away this Brockton Downey batter early in last week's victory at Rotary Park. The District 13 champs played for the State Title at Westminster Saturday but came up just short. See story below.

Major League Girls

Westminster downs young Wildcats

The Wilmington Major League (11-12) Girls' softball team earned its' way to the Little League State Championship in Westminster by winning the District 13 Championship for the fourth straight year.

The young Wildcats defeated Stoneham, 20-3 in their first game, while losing to the Woburn Americans, 14-3 in game two.

The feisty Wildcats came back with consecutive victories over Stoneham (18-7) Woburn American (13-10) and again over the Americans (22-12) for the District Championship.

Wilmington then went on to defeat Lawrence Prospect Hill (6-5) and Brockton Downey to get to the State Final. However, in Westminster the girls ran into a buzzsaw in Worcester Barry and went down to defeat by the score of 15-1.

The young ladies representing Wilmington throughout the tournament were Kristin Roche, Keri Anderson, Rebecca Rogers and Nicole Ciaramaglia (Angels); Julie Gillis, Shannon Lyman, Melissa Palermo and Emily Pratt (Mariners); Melissa Mather and Leann Bento (Blue Jays); Melissa Alonardo (Giants) and Melissa Merrill and Catherine Townsend (Cubs).

The All-Stars were managed by Ken MacArthur (Padres) and coached by Paul Lyman (Mariners), Jake Townsend (Cubs) and Jay Neale (Giants.).

Many thanks are extended to all the players and their parents for their time and understanding and to the many fans for their support.

State Champions

Gillis' four hits spark attack

Wilmington Girls State Champs

Wilmington's Senior Softball girls traveled to Westminster Saturday and returned home with a State Championship.

Wilmington went into this game undefeated in five tournament games to play the final playoff contest.

Stacy Gillis led off with a hit to start the attack rolling. Laurie Southmayd came up with a double to drive Stacey home. Kristi Lyman then laid down a sacrifice bunt to score Laurie.

Jacqueline Holloway hit a double and Michelle Ciramaglia drove Jacqui home with a basehit. Wilmington led by three runs in the first inning as Westminster came up empty.

In the second inning Gillis came up with her second hit. Southmayd's sacrifice fly drove Stacey home. Lyman got a basehit, but that was it for Wilmington in the second inning. Westminster came up with four runs to cut the margin to 5-4 before both teams traded three outs in the third frame.

In the fourth Gillis came up with her third hit to start the inning. Southmayd's hit put runners on first and second before Lyman's hit drove Stacy home.

Holloway's long sacrifice fly to centerfield scored Southmayd for two more important runs.

Westminster then came up with a run to bring the score to 7-5. Nichole Dussault scored on a Jen Murray sacrifice for the only score in the fifth.

Wilmington came up with two runs in the sixth with hits from Lyman and Holloway and Nancy Pote's two run double brought the score to 10-5, Wilmington.

Gillis led off the seventh with her fourth hit of the day and Laurie Southmayd came up with a big triple to score Gillis and Murray who both walked.

Kristi Lyman's third hit of the game was a double to score Southmayd. Westminster's pitcher struckout the next three batters to end Wilmington's hitting for the day at 17 safeties.

Defensively, Nancy Pote prowled centerfield for the Cats to pick off three flyballs.

Laurie Southmayd came up with three big throws from shortstop to first for the out. Nichole Dussault threw out two runners at first. Jen Murray, who pitched a great game allowing only seven hits all day, threw out four girls heading to first.

Jacqui Holloway and Jenna Neale played well in leftfield, while Carrie and Leanne took care of rightfield.

Renee Vachon relieved Nichole Dussault at third and Lindsay Currier took over at firstbase for Michelle Ciaramaglia.

Laurie Southmayd played short stop, while Stacy Gillis took away a lot of big plays at secondbase, including a throw down from catcher Kristi Lyman on the first runner attempting to steal in the first inning for a big out to show Westminster that stealing against Lyman was futile.

Manager Jack Holloway and coach Mike Alonardo now take their State Championship team to New London, Conn. for the regional tournaments this week. Wilmington's first game was against Maine Tuesday night.

Saturday's win in Westminster was a repeat performance for six of these players who won the State Championship as 12-year-olds two years ago on the same field.

This is a great feat for the girls of Wilmington. Bob Surran's Little League program this year sent two teams to the State Finals. Unfortunately, the girls' Major League team lost to Worcester.

Wilmington's Senior League Girls State Champions should have a good time this week in New London, Conn. Thanks to the generous contributions from the residents of the town who gave contributions to the girls Saturday in front of the local stores.

The coaches thank those stores and the residents of the town of Wilmington for all their help and a special thanks to Trombly Bus Service for donating Saturday's bus.

Nice play

Wilmington pitcher Melissa Merrill reacts quickly to this chopper back to the mound in tourney action against Brockton Downey. Melissa pitched well before tiring late in the game.

Star hurler Wilmington Major League All-Star pitcher Jason Giagorio fires this pitch in last week's District 13 Championship game loss to Arlington National.

Agganis MVP Former Tewksbury High School football standout Sean Mackey was named the Most Valuable Player of Friday night's Harry Agganis All-Star game in Lynn. Mackey, who will be attending Fordham in the fall, started at quarterback for the winning squad and scored an important touchdown. Former TMHS running back Tim Lightfoot also played a fine game for the winning team.

National Tournament August 7-11

O'Connell, Lyman Junior Olympians

Wilmington residents Judy O'Connell and Kerri Lyman are members of the 18 and under Junior Olympic Peabody Raiders Softball Team which has qualified for the National Tournament next week, August 7-11 in Columbia, Maryland.

The Raiders captured the Mass. State Title with wins over Taunton, Lexington, Worcester, Franklin and Taunton again to qualify for the New England Regionals in Augusta, Maine.

While in Maine the team went undefeated again with wins over Maine, Connecticut and Lexington, Mass. twice to earn its' way to Maryland.

Judy O'Connell, who was recently named Wilmington High School MVP for 1991, Merrimack Valley MVP and Lowell Sun and Boston Globe and Herald Player of the Year, splits her time between catching and firstbase for the Raiders while batting fourth in the lineup and enters the National Tournament with a solid .407 average.

Kerri Lyman, who pitched Bishop Fenwick to the Division I State Title this past year with a 19-1 record as a sophomore is the number three pitcher and plays thirdbase for the Raiders. Lyman's tournament record so far is 2-0, while she is hitting a fine .367 on the year.

The two young ladies will be out looking to defray the cost of their trip to the Nationals this week. Anyone interested in making donations may address the checks to: Peabody Raiders/Junior Olympic Softball or contact WHS softball coach Paul Lyman at 658-8842.

Youth football practice Monday

Tewksbury Youth Football has announced that signups and practices for players will begin Monday, August 5.

The football program is open to all players between the ages of eight and 13. All ages are determined as of September 1, 1991.

The cheerleader signups and practices will start Monday, August 12. All signups and practices will be held at the State Fields in the Livingston Street Complex in Tewksbury from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Tewksbury Youth Football is organized into two traveling teams and four intown teams.

The Midget A team is open for 12 and 13-year-old players with a maximum weight of 135 pounds. The age is determined as of September 1, 1991.

The Junior Midget B team is open to all 11 and 12-year-old players. The maximum weight limit in this category is 110 pounds. Again, the age determination is as of September 1, 1991.

Both traveling teams participate in the Massachuetts Youth Football Association (MYFA).

The Tewksbury Youth Football In Town Program is being operated for the sixth consecutive year and is open to all eight to 11-year-olds.

There are four teams in the In Town Program. The maximum weight limit is 140 pounds. First year 11-year-olds may elect to play in this program along with other 11-year-olds as determined by the board of directors and parents of participating players.

The Tewksbury Youth Football Player and cheerleader participation has been steadily increasing each year.

The program's success has been due to the excellent cooperation of the many volunteers who have given their time and energy.

All coaches and board members are very optimistic and encouraged with the numerous positive aspects and growth of the Tewksbury Youth Football Program.

Last year 130 boys and 123 girls actively took part in football and cheerleading.

The current registration fees have been established at $50 per child and $90 maximum per family. The registration fee includes all equipment except personal items such as mouth pieces, shorts, socks, shoes, etc.

Tewksbury Youth Football invites all players interested in playing to go down to the State Field at the Livingston Street Complex Monday, Aug. 5 to register and start practice.

Cheerleaders are requested to report to the State Field Monday, Aug. 12 at 6 p.m. to register and start practice.

As with any program, volunteers are needed. Everyone is welcomed to get involved.

Coaching positions are available as well as many volunteer activities on the board. For information, call Frank Ferrelli, president at 851-4494 or registration director Tony Ganchi at 851-4339.

Outdoors column

Two worlds around us

by Bill Conlon

There are two worlds around us, every 24 hours. One of the worlds we see, the other we don't.

Humans prefer the bright half of the day-night cycle, giving us the title of "diurnal" creatures. But the other half of the cycle is just as busy as the daytime.

Actually, the cycle isn't exactly half-and-half, except for the Vernal and Autumnal Equinoxes. Only on those two events, are the day and night of equal length. Sunrise on Saturday, August 3, will at 5:38 a.m., and the orb will set on 8:02 p.m. giving us actually 14 hours, 24 minutes of sunlight that day. Hardly 12 and 12, is it?

But we only see what happens on the sunny side of the cycle.

What happens after dark? Plenty. The world comes alive at night, and all manner of unusual critters are prowling.

There are bats, certainly, filling the nighttime sky. Some ponds have dozens, even hundreds of the flying bug-zappers spinning through the inky sky. Bats are terrific to have around, since they eat bugs, but you probably don't want to know that a few bats are usually circling your head at night, coming within inches of your face. They do, but you'd rather not know that, right?

Night is also the province of the beavers. Up to 40 pounds or more, these huge rodents paddle silently across the pond at night, searching for saplings to eat and trees to fell for their famous dams and lodges. Beavers only build dams on streams that are too shallow for their liking. An average pond may have a couple of beaver lodges along the shore, but they don't feel the need to set up a dam, if there's enough water to let them swim up into the downward-looking entrance to the lodge. The beavers are scarce in the daytime, but at night they're everywhere.

Oh, once upon a time, if you had a problem with beavers in your area, you could call the state and they'd take the critters away for stocking in a new location. But no more. All areas have beavers now. Today if you have a problem, say a family of beavers is damming the stream that cuts through your back yard, you'll have to think of your own solution.

Another silent denizen of the dark is the owl. We have all kinds of owl in this area, from Great Horned to little Screech owls. The roam the sky at night, but you won't see or hear them, in most cases.

I've heard, but haven't been able to prove, that owls find their prey not through sight, but by sound. An acquaintance told me that owls have their ears widely spaced along their skulls, giving them the ability to triangulate by sound at distances up to 200 feet away. Interesting.

Squirrels, red and grey, bounce across the lawn during the day, but they have a cousin that avoids the sun -- flying squirrels. These small brown critters are about the size of a chimpunk, but with flaps of skin connecting their fore and aft legs. They don't actually fly, like a bird, but they will leap from one tree and glide on their "wings" to another. They're native to this area, but you probably have never seen one.

Insects rule the world, no matter how hard we try to wipe them out, and there whole species are never found during the day, only at night.

One large insect, called the stone fly, hatches only at night. They are big, about three inches long, with dirt-grey wings that extend past the body. If the stone flies are hatching, the fish will blast anything landing on the surface, with gusto.

But there are too many insects at night to count them all, from lowly mosquitoes to the huge, green Luna moth. I've always wanted to see a Luna moth, but I've never found a single one, or even the wings that a spider has trimmed off. But they're out there, at night.

Coyotes also enjoy the night, and if you listen some evening, you may be treated to their song. Yes, right in this area.

Raccoons and opossums crawling through your neighborhood's trash cans tonight? Count on it. Big ones too, since nobody hunts them much anymore. Only the slow ones that try to cross the roads are seen, but there are hundreds. Skunks, too.

Of course, my favorite nocturnal critters are largemouth bass, huge ones, blasting mice and bugs off the surface, or slurping rubber worms by the moonlight. Night fishing for bass runs from wild to deadly dull, but most nights there's nobody else on the pond, all is cool and quiet, and I'm surrounded by wildlife. What a way to beat the heat! Others are discovering the joys of night bass fishing, but not many. One guy I met works swing shift, and said he doesn't usually put his boat onto the pond until 1 a.m., then fishes until sunrise.

One thing about the night -- you are never completely alone. There is a host of wildlife out there, in the dark, that you likely never see.

Bats around your head, beavers slowly paddling by, frogs singing in the shallows and enormous bugs fluttering through your flashlight beam.

The night is alive!

— Tackle Box —

Tip of the hat goes to Eddie Silva, at Wildside Sports in Wilmington, for taking first place in Sunday's Mass B.A.S.S. Federation event on Long Pond in Lakeville, near Fall River. Eddie and George Veloza landed seven fish, totalling 12.32 pounds, to take first place out of 57 boats and 114 anglers. They were using red "shad" rubber worms all day, and landed their first bass just seven minutes into the derby. Eddie was in 14th place in Mass. B.A.S.S. standings before Sunday, so we'll see where this outing puts him.

Dan's Bait & Tackle, on the shore of Lake Mascuppic in Tyngsboro, is under new management, having been bought by Mark Falardeau. A feature of the new management is a daily fishing tournament, with all Massachusetts waters open. Mark said the weekday entry fee is $5 and $10 on weekends, with 75 percent of the entry pool going to prizes.

On some days, there are no entries, but on other days there have been up to 40 entrants. Not bad. Hours are 7:30 to 6:30 weekdays, and 5:30 to 4:30 weekends. The fishing is by species, including bass, pickerel, carp and trout, but all bass must be alive when brought to Dan's to be weighed.

The look of champions Wilmington's Senior League girls' softball all-stars have plenty to smile about as they clinched the State Championship with their rout of Westminster Saturday afternoon. See story, other photo on page nine of the sports section.

Wilmington senior topics

Social August 9

The August therapeutic social will be held Friday, August 9 in the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks Hall. A roast beef dinner with all the trimmings will be served at seven o'clock. Music for the evening will be provided by Chet Harnden. Using our new system of being assigned a table when you sign up is pleasing the seniors very much. What we hear is, "to know when you arrive at the hall and know the number of the table you will be sitting at is great." So just relax, you don't have to race to get ready. Take your time. You have until seven o'clock to get there. Remember to call the center if you are canceling out.

Surplus food distribution

Thursday, August 1, starting at 9:30 a.m. we will be distributing surplus government commodities to persons under a low income program or within the income levels posted on the counter. We have received only a limited supply of all items. Some less than others. Therefore, we will expect to run out of many items very early. We are aware that there are many young people who are unemployed due to the failing economy. We hope they will come to the center also for the commodities. We received flour, cornmeal, sliced pears, rice, beans, vegetarian beans, raisins and butter. As I mentioned, many items are very limited; the earlier you arrive the more items you will receive.

If you are unable to go to the center due to a disability and feel you qualify and want the commodities call the center the day before. We will arrange to have them delivered. It is not necessary to take a shopping bag along because we will ask the supermarkets for some.

Dr. Leavitt, Friday, Aug. 2

Podiatrist Dr.Leavitt will be at the Center Friday, Aug. 2 starting at 9 a.m. He will be checking and treating ailments of the feet. If you will be calling for the minibus transportation to see the doctor please call the day before and let us know. He will remain at the Center only until he treats those seniors waiting for him.

Medex

When the pending rate increase for Medex insurance goes through, the cost of the Medex insurance policy will have increased over 100 percent since 1986.

Last year's tremendous increase forced 30,000 Medex subscribers to either drop or downgrade their health insurance. Medex III will cost over $1,130 this year. There are more than 250,000 seniors who cannot afford the policy and will have to pay for prescription drugs. The average cost can go as high as $1500 a year. They will also have to pay out of their income, if hospitalized, a doctor deductible of $100 and the hospital deductible of $628. Seniors cannot afford the Medex cost and they can not afford to pay the above cost. What can they do? There is a Medex Relief Proposal Bill (#4170) in the Legislature. It provides relief for all Medex subscribers. All seniors will get about $300 off their annual Medex premiums. Low income seniors will get about $300 off their annual Medex premiums. Low income seniors with an annual income under $12,000 get an added $250 annual premium reduction making Medex affordable to them. It also states future rate increases will be limited to the Medical inflation rate. This bill does not require tax increases or new state funding. Call or write Rep. Jim Miceli and Sen. Bob Buell and ask them to support Bill #4170.

'White goods' collection begins August 12

Beginning Monday, August 12, 1991 the Town of Wilmington will add white goods to its list of items being recycled. White goods are defined as large metal appliances and durable goods such as refrigerators, ovens, dishwashers, washing machines and dryers. If residents have any of these type items and wish to dispose of them, they should simply place the item at the curbside during the day of their normal rubbish collection. Waste Management, the Town's rubbish collection contractor, will pick up the white goods and take them to the Town's recycling drop-off center located off Old Main Street in South Wilmington.

Residents should not remove the freon, ballasts or any other items in the appliance as these items will be taken care of by the vendor collecting the white goods. Once the materials are taken to the drop-off center, they will be stored in a large roll-off container for collection by West Lynn Recycling Company. On an as needed basis, West Lynn Recycling will collect the white goods and transport them back to their facility in Lynn.

The company will pay the Town $4.00 per ton for every ton of white goods collected. This price is subject to increase or decrease depending on the market for recycled metal. However, in no event will the Town be required to pay for the transportation or collection of these white goods. The Town expects to reduce the amount of solid waste being sent to the incineration facility in North Andover by 150-200 tons per year. This avoidance cost alone will save the Town between $9,900 and $13,200 annually.

While we expect that Waste Management will collect each of the white goods as they become apparent, there may be instances where certain items are missed by the Waste Management collection crew. If you notice that the Waste Management truck has been through your neighborhood and not collected your appliance, please contact the Public Works office at 658-4481. You may contact them between the hours of 7 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Many people may be wondering what happens to the white goods once they are collected by the recycling vendor. First off, the freon, ballasts and other internal materials that are deemed hazardous materials are removed by a qualified person. These items must be disposed of in an environmentally sensitive way in compliance with state environmental rules and regulations. The remaining metal is crushed into large bales of scrap metal. This material is shipped to a port possibly in New York City for purchase by a company interested in the scrap metal. In most instances, the scrap metal is purchased by companies in Japan, Korea and the Far East and shipped to those destinations. At this point, the material known as frag is used as a recycled metal in items including automobiles.

If you have any questions regarding the procedure for disposing of your white goods, please contact the Public Works office at 658-4481. Thanks to your efforts, Wilmington recycles!

Staying healthy in the summer heat

Nutrition in the summer heat

If you've found that your appetite has taken a vacation during these dog days of summer, you're not alone. It's important, however,to eat foods high in nutrients and drink plenty of fluids during those hot days, even if your stomach somewhat protests. Registered dietitians at Winchester Hospital have great suggestions on nutritional and appealing foods to eat (and drink) on hot summer days.

For instance, a cold pasta salad with low fat mayonnaise, low fat yogurt (for creamy texture) dijan mustard, tuna fish and seasonal vegetables is packed with vitamins, carbohydrates and protein. If a cold drink is all you can think about, try a banana smoothie with bananas, crushed pineapples, orange juice, strawberries and ice cream. This drink will keep you going all day long. Call today for information on nutritional summer eating.

Special care for the elderly in the heat

The elderly need to take special care during the hot dog days of summer. They don't have the sweat glands necessary to cool their bodies properly and their thirst mechanism doesn't work as well. This means many times the early warning signs of heat stress - sweating and thirst - are not present, which makes them much more susceptible to heat stress.

The symptoms of heat stress, include diarrhea, vomiting and nausea. The best way for the elderly to avoid heat stress and dehydration is by avoiding caffeine and alcohol and drinking at least eight glasses of water a day. Find out more about the elderly and heat today.

Tanned teens pay later

Teenagers who opt for a dark tan today may pay later in life. According to new research, sun exposure is particularly risky for people ages 15 to 20. The study shows that those who suffered sunburns in this young age range were more likely to contract malignant melanoma - potentially deadly skin cancers. And the risk increases even for teens who tan without burning. (This is also true among young children).

Wilmington police news

During the week ending July 30, Wilmington police officers responded to 25 alarms, two assaults, made nine arrests, assisted other departments on five occasions, completed 10 bank escorts, investigated two burglaries and 16 reports of disorderly conduct.

Eight larcenies were reported, two vehicles were reported stolen and five stolen vehicles were recovered; one person was reported missing, medical assistance was given twice, eight non-criminal complaints were logged and one person was taken into protective custody.

Eleven public services were performed, three threat complaints were taken, 12 traffic accidents were investigated, five traffic services were performed, and three trail bikes complaints were logged.

Eight incidents of suspicious activity were reported, eight incidents of vandalism are still under investigation and three domestic problems were quieted.

Arrests

Tuesday night Officers Begonis and Desmond drove to Wakefield to arrest Keith J. Laughlin, 35 of North Reading on the basis of a default warrant issued by Woburn Court. Laughlin was bailed for a morning court appearance.

Inspectors Celata and Peterson arrested Christopher Ford, 25, of Dorothy Avenue, Wilmington charging him with two counts of arson and one count of malicious damage to personal property.

The charges resulted from a three week investigation into the torching of two sheds on Dorothy Avenue. Assisting officers included Tom Miller and Paul Jepson.

At 12:30 a.m. Thursday, Officer David Sugrue arrested two men on Middlesex Avenue. Anthony Freitas, 20, of Billerica and Eric Goodridge, 17 of Lucaya Circle, Wilmington were charged with being minors in possession of alcohol.

At 4 a.m. on the same day, Officer Sugrue made his third arrest while on patrol on Glen Road. George Silva, 32 of Fairfield Road was charged with operating under the influence of liquor, second offense and with operating after suspension of his license and giving a false name to a police officer.

Officer Jim Cuoco arrested Jeffrey Kane, 22 of Burlington Saturday night after investigation of a one car accident on Eames Street. Kane was charged with operating under the influence of liquor, second offense and operating after revocation of his drivers license. Kane was unable to meet bail and was held overnight in the lockup to appear in Woburn Court Monday morning.

A Revere man was arrested on Salem Street Monday morning by Officer Charlie Fiore. Daniel Nickerson, 29 of Ocean Drive was charged with operating after suspension of his drivers license. He was taken directly to Woburn Court.

Later on Monday Officer Mike Begonis arrested William Giorlando Jr., 19 of Stone Street, Wilmington on the basis of an outstanding warrant. He was held on $500 bail to appear inWoburn Court Tuesday.

Early Tuesday morning Officer David Sugrue drove to Reading P.D. to arrest Misti Nissen, 17, of Lisa Lane on a default warrant charging her with larceny and forgery. She was held until her appearance in Woburn Court.

Correction

A story in last week's Town Crier relating to the resignation of a Wilmington police officer was called untrue by the officer and the sergeant involved with the case.

Sgt. David McCue said that while it was true that Greg Farnkoff had resigned from the police department, other points in the story were not correct. He said he was not at liberty to give the correct facts of the story.

Farnkoff also approached the Town Crier, claiming that the story was incorrect. He would not, however, give any information to correct the story.

Third generation family business

A tradition of quality

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

In the words of Tevye, the poor but honest milkman in Fiddler on the Roof's community of Anatevkya "tradition" keeps the family together, in the real life community of Woburn the Kenney family is perpetuating tradition.

The family is celebrating 58-years of tradition as Kenney's Delicatessen and Caterers by bringing in the third generation to run the business.

Paul Kenney, the second generation has announced that his son Matthew, 22, will be part of the management team of the store started by Paul's father, Thomas.

Matt graduated from Rhode Island's Johnson and Wales in May with a Bachelor's degree in Management, from the school's Entrepreneur program.

"When I got out of school I took over the operation of food and employees. My father is working on bringing in the customers," he said.

However, Matt's entry into the business has not stopped Paul from jumping behind the counter and making sure that lunch orders are filled correctly and speedily.

"I'm thrilled to have him in the business," Paul said during a break in customers.

Matt has some definite plans for the business which are based as much on his work experience at the site as they are on the theories he has learned in school.

Matt's real qualification for being brought into the business is that he has been working at it since he was 13-years-old.

Because of this earlier service, he understands "the continuing evolution process" the business has been going through and the tradition of quality that has helped the business grow since its start in 1933.

At that time the store was started as a delicatessen, it has now evolved into a business that is 50 percent delicatessen and 50 percent catering.

According to Matt, "When my father got out of college, we were basically a little grocery store. He made the changes you see today.

"That's why I'm glad to come in and take some of the pressure off," Matt added.

He has a two-fold five year plan to see the catering business grow and yet keep the deli as a neighborhood affair. "This fall we will start a program to attract new customers."

He also noted that the program would include having the employees of the store "get to know our customers.

"We are trying to get the customer that is looking for the best and doesn't want shortcuts," Matt said.

Paul remembered his entry into the business in 1957 and the time he spent at the shop while growing up.

According to Paul, the store had the hanging salamis and cheeses and the pickle barrel.

That has all been replaced now by a modern display case for the deli goods.The cost of the case was $1,000-per-square-foot.

Another addition was the restaurant section built by Paul about 12-years ago. The bright, clean lunch room can used as a function hall and many people rent it out for events such as baby showers, wedding showers, business functions and other uses.

Other changes that have been made are the two on-site kitchens that are needed for the catering and deli business.

Matt said "The deli is what we are most famous for. We serve real high quality items."

Paul added that the stress on quality was started with the business. He used the potato salad as an example and noted that it is made in 25 pound batches "and all the potatoes are hand peeled."

Paul and Matt noted that other deli's and restaurants in the area are going to packaged goods in their sales, Kenney's is still selling hams, roast beefs (made from Certified Angus Beef), meatballs, salads and other items that were made from recipes handed down from Paul's Aunt Molly Kenney.

"She was a graduate of Fanny Farmer's Cooking School and committed to doing recipes right," Paul said.

Matt added, "It is good to be able to say that you are the best at something."

Acording to Matt, "A lot of places have cut quality to keep the prices down. That is one thing we didn't do."

He noted that several customers have personally thanked the Kenneys for not cutting quality especially in the tight economic times.

"That was my father's doing, I was still in college," Matt said.

"We have never had to apologize for our quality in 58-years," he added.

Paul said of his fight to keep quality when the temptation was to cut "Once you cut quality, you cut your throat."

Although one of Matt's goals is to keep the deli as a neighborhood place, the father and son note that many customers come from outside of Woburn to visit the 487 Main Street site.

"We have a kind of cult following," Matt said.

Paul said "You can pretty much set your watch by some of our customers." He noted that one mother and daughter come in on a weekly basis from Wakefield.

The farthest points are the people that come from Cape Cod to purchase the salads and other deli goods at Kenney's.

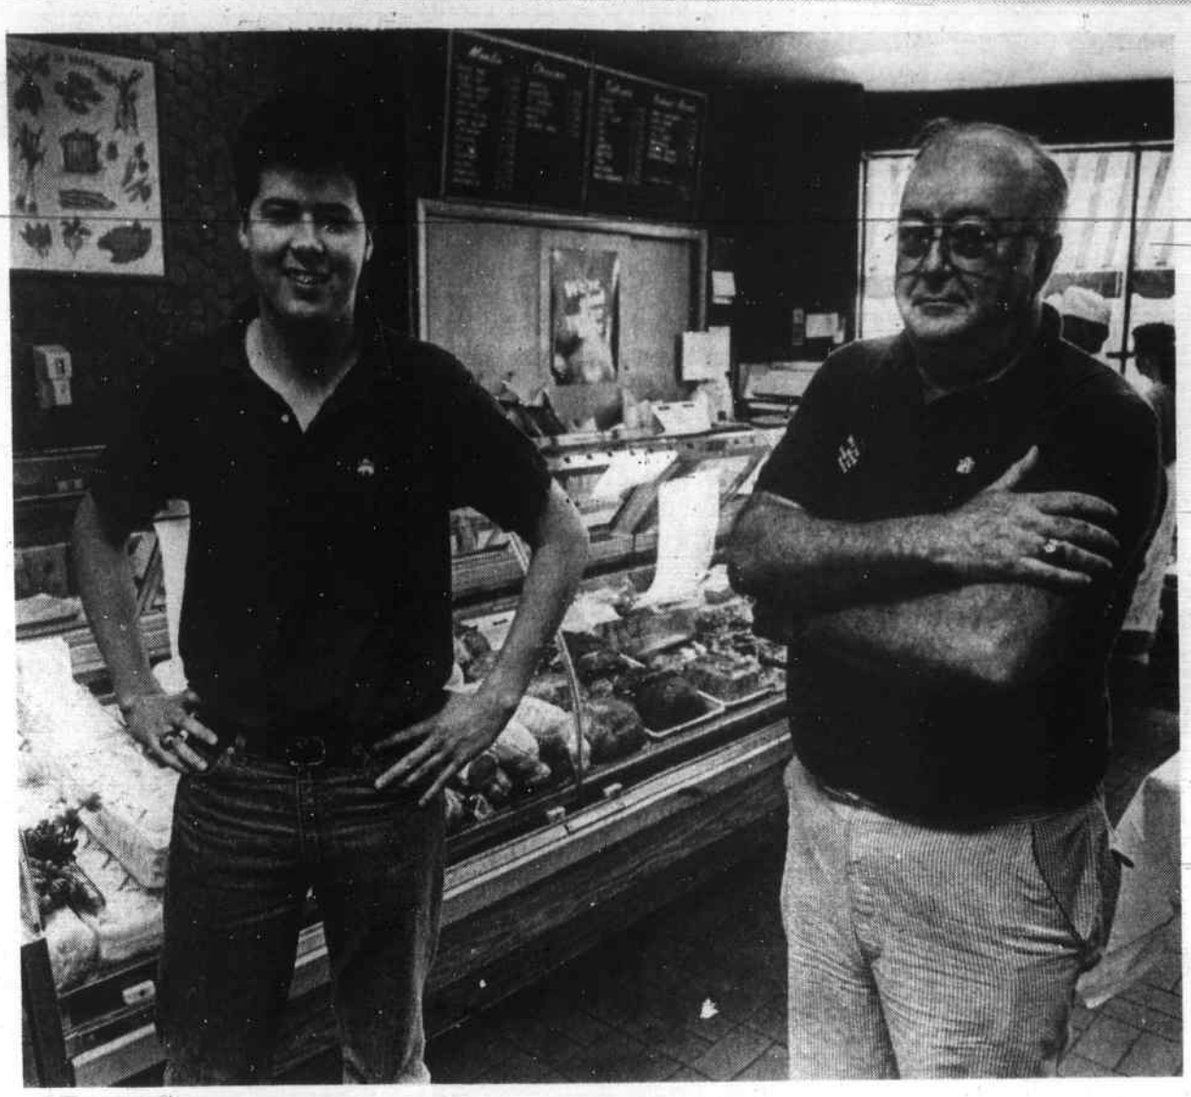

Paul also noted that one person makes a weekly trip down from Nashua, New Hampshire and another customer has salads shipped to an address in Florida.

Paul noted that working at the store has not been just a tradition of the Kenney family.

Several other Woburn families have also had more than one person work there.

"We're pretty much a staple of the community," Matt punned.

According to Paul, as many as three to four kids in one family have worked for the store throughout the years.

QUALITY WILL BE A CONTINUING TRADITION at Kenney's Deli and Caterers. To make sure that the tradition is carried on, Paul Kenney (r) has brought his youngest son Matt, 22 (l) in as a manager. Matt is the third generation of Kenneys in the 58-year-old business started by Paul's father, Thomas. (Don Young photo)

He noted that it has been a good training ground for some who have gone on to become executives in the corporate world or to start businesses of their own.

Paul remembered that Eddie Carroll was one of four siblings that worked at the shop. While working their Carroll met his friend and now partner Jerry O'Donnell.

After working at Kenny's the pair went to college together and then started ECO Landscapers in Wilmington.

The work could not have been to bad as Paul also notes that many of the former employees have remained as good customers.

As the catering business expands, Matt notes that many of those customers are coming from along the Route 128 and Route 3 industrial complexes.

However, once again they recognize that many of their customers are locally oriented and Matt said that the ties with the Woburn business community will not be cut.

As to the attraction to the larger corporations, Matt again said that it is quality.

He notes that the larger corporations aren't too concerned with how much they pay for their catered events, but they demand the quality that Kenney's has offered.

If the plans for the future gel, then Kenney's could aim for another 50-years of business and possibly a fourth and fifth generation of family operation.

That would be a tradition.

Our far flung correspondent is on vacation this week. Until his return, another edition of those off-beat tidbits on American history to keep you readers busy.

In her book, "My Thirty Years Backstairs at the White House," Lilian Rogers Parks reveals that it was Harry Truman who realized that the head of the eagle on the presidential seal in the center of the rug in the White House Green Room was turned the wrong way. The eagle's head pointed in the direction of the arrows; it was supposed to be pointed toward the olive branch. Parks noted that Truman ordered that the rug be restitched with the eagle's head facing the right direction.

William F. Buckley, Jr., editor of the National Review, once told the humorous story of how his grandfather, who had died in 1904, mysteriously rose from the grave in 1948 to cast a vote for Lyndon Johnson, who was running at the time for a Texas seat in the U.S. Senate. Johnson won the Texas Democratic primary by a mere eighty-seven votes. The victory earned him the nickname "Landslide Johnson." His opponent former Governor Coke R. Stevenson, charged fraud and ordered a recount. During the brief investigation, it was discovered that, in one county, where Johnson had won by more than a thousand votes, 202 new names mysteriously appeared, all in the same handwriting, with the same ink, in alphabetical order. One of those names was William F. Buckley's dead grandfather, who had come from New York and had been a staunch conservative.

In spite of the discrepancies, the election was upheld. Years later, a Johnson aide admitted that "they stole that election," and added that that was the way elections were run in Texas back in 1948. Johnson's aide indicated that Johnson had learned this lesson in politics seven years earlier, when, in 1941, he had run for the same seat. He went to bed on election night with a five thou-

ANTHONY MANCONI

Bob Burns was coming out of the Woburn Elks Lodge when he met a man walking what looked like an Irish Setter on a leash. "What breed is that dog mister?" Bob asked. The poor guy must have had a bad day because he snapped back, "He's part Irish Setter and part monkey!" Without blinking an eye Bob replied, "Gee, fancy that. He's related to both of us!"

"Eternity" is paying for a car on the installment plan. Fire Chiefs have a sense of humor too you know -- like Chief Arnold "Clinker" Eydenberg who told me that the "short sleeve shire" was invented by a member of the American Rifle Club. They, of course, advocate and endorse the right to 'bare arms." Folks, I'll wait until my Aunt Nora gets back -- she had to take a couple of aspirins after reading that gem.

After singing several hymns the clergyman told the congregation, "that was beautiful singing - now - let's all turn to Number 10 in our wallets." A mama mosquito said to her young family, "If you are good today I'll take you with me to a nudist camp tonight!" Folks, there isn't anything worth worrying about. The only realities are sunrise and sunset. Without them, everything in between is unimportant!

Officer Kevin Fisher rang my doorbell several times before Kathy answered it saying, "Well,

About the towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

WAKEFIELD - According to Wakefield Department of Public Works Director Richard Boutiette, 97.5 percent of the 1,277 customers who answered a recent survey rated Wakefield's curbside recycling program either good or excellent.

Several respondents commended DPW and Laidlaw Waste Systems personnel for their courteous, professional manner.

Some bottles or cans are not picked up because the metal or plastic rings which remain around their necks when they are opened damage the recycling machine.

READING - In a budget-saving measure voted by the Board of Selectmen and after an almost three-month delay caused by concern about liability, Reading Municipal Light Department crews have begun turning off about 210 street lights, almost five percent of the town's lighting.

If these lights remain off for all of FY92, the town will save approximately $19,000.

STONEHAM - The Stoneham Arts Lottery Council will be able to run all 11 of the projects for which it submitted applications as part of the Spring Arts Lottery and PASS program cycle.

On tap then, budget willing, are the following Arts Lottery projects: four Brown Bag lunch concerts, Folk Arts Carvings, Square Day entertainment, a historical tour of Stoneham, a middle school trip to the Boston Globe - and nothing for the Stoneham Summer Drama Workshop because of recent changes in its operation.

PASS programs and trips approved are: South Elementary to the North Shore Music Theatre, Central School to Wheelock Family Theatre, Robin Hood (School) to Theatreworks-USA, and Colonial Park to both the North Shore Music Theatre and Le Grand David at the Cabot Theatre.

NORTH READING - The North Reading Board of Selectmen has officially changed its meeting nights to Mondays. But that's not the news.

The news is the several weeks-to-10 years of discussion about the change, preceding the change, from the traditional Thursdays, the nights Town Hall offices used to be open, until budget cuts cut that out.

Slow news week?

SENIOR CENTER - The Stoneham Senior Center's Olde Fashioned Band Concert and Box Lunch will begin at 11 a.m. on August 21st, to the tunes of music by the Wakefield Retired Men's Band with box lunches -- seafood salad sandwich, potato salad, chips, brownie, and lemonade - provided at noon by Mystic Valley Elder Services.

Stoneham residents 60 and over should register in person at the center - the all-cover charge to be paid at that time is $1.50. And that includes the watermelon, too.

what the heck do you want? I'm busy practicing my piano lessons." "O'kay," replied Kevin, "but we got a call that someone named 'Beethoven' is being murdered in this house!"

When George Gould was a letter carrier in Reading he noticed a young boy trying desperately to reach a doorbell button on a house near Reading Square. George went up the steps and said, "Here, let me help you kid." He gave the doorbell button a generous push and said, "O'kay kid?" "Yeah, gee thanks mister, now let's run like hell!"

Bill McGarr said to me, "O'kay Chipper, if you came here to forget - please pay when served." Things that BUG me - cash back, roll back and rebate gimmicks. Why don't they do business the old fashioned way and sell at a lower price? Folks, invariably the man who boasts that he never made a mistake, has a wife who unfortunately did.

Kathy is a charter member of a women's garden club. She doesn't know a 'bean' from a 'turnip' but knows all of the gossip in town. I asked Kenny Kirkland from Burlington (when we were on the Carrier Wasp), "Ken, another two years and we'll both retire from the Navy. Where are you going to settle down?" Ken said, "I'm going to walk off this ship and carry an oar over by shoulder. The first person who asks me 'what the heck is that?' that's where I'll stay!" Burlington, you're lucky there was one guy who didn't know what an oar was because you have a wonderful friend of mine as a resident.

Dennis Tully wasn't so hot a student in Geometry. The teacher asked, "Dennis, a pentagon is a five sided figure - a hexagon is a six sided figure - can you tell me what a polygon is?" Dennis smiled and said, "I think a polygon is a dead parrot.

Blackie Vega and Johnny Ave were walking on Main Street when they met Father Dick Messina coming toward them with his arm in a sling. "What happened Father?" Blackie asked. "I slipped in the bathtub and hurt my arm," Fr. Dick replied. Later, Blackie asked Johnny, "What's a bathtub?" "How do I know," Johnny exclaimed, "I'm not a Catholic!"

A company that made medicine for the "hard of hearing" asked my Uncle John for a testimonial. Uncle John complied saying, "For ten years I couldn't hear a thing but, after using your product for three weeks, I heard from my brother in California." We are invited to my Aunt Nora's 87th birthday party. Kathy asked me, "Fatso, do you think she'll have 87 candles on the cake?" "Look here!" I shouted, "It's going to be a birthday party Not a 'torch-light' parade!"

Do you remember "She's lovely, she's engaged, she uses Ponds?" Well my sister Maureen didn't get married until she used soap. I love to watch fire engine drivers back those giant ladder trucks into the fire stations and stop right on the money. I also marvel how the men, and women too, back those mammoth eighteen wheelers right up to and "just kiss" the loading platform at the Chelsea Produce Center.

Incidentally, the traffic at the Chelsea terminal travels on the "left" like they do in Merrie Ole England - only - there's a good reason for this. Can any of you truckers figure out why? I'll answer that next week -- there's no joke I promise. My bowling team is so quiet that when we bowl you can hardly hear a pin drop.

Super Stars of the week are Gus and Margaret Strangie of North Reading.

sand vote lead; he awoke the next morning to learn that he'd lost the election by ten thousand votes!

In October 1947 famous libertarian Ayn Rand testified before the notorious House Un-American Activities Committee. Her testimony focused on the 1944 file "Song of Russia." Rand criticized the movie for showing the Russian people smiling, and commented, "I have never seen so much smiling in my life." She went on to remark that the film's smiling faces reminded her of the murals of the World's Fair pavilion of the Soviet, adding that the smiling faces on the murals was a propaganda trick of the Communists. When asked by Congressman John McDowell if Russian people smile in real life, Rand replied, "Not quite that way, no. If they do, it is privately and accidentally. Certainly, it is not social. They don't smile in approved of their system."

In "The Crucial Decade _ And After: America, 1945-1960," author Eric F. Goldman reveals that, in 1953, the Daughters of the American Revolution coerced Dwight Eisenhower, the first Republican president in twenty years, to have the gold in Fort Knox counted. The reason: the Daughters of the American Revolution were convinced that the New Deal Democrats had stolen all the gold from Fort Knox.

Eisenhower didn't take the charges seriously, but to appease the accusers, he ordered the gold counted. Investigators found that the Fort contained $30,442,415,581.70 worth of the precious metal. That was ten dollars less than what was supposed to be in the Fort. To emphasize just how absurd the charges had been, Mrs. Georgia Clark, treasurer of the United States under the Democrats, sent President Eisenhower a check to cover the loss.

In "A Low-Level Memoir of the Nixon White House," author Douglas Hallett reveals how Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt learned to be so unsympathetic. In 1954, Hunt, one of the top CIA agents, went to Guatemala to help overthrow the anti-American government. Once the coup against the leftist government was completed, Hunt prepared to return to Washington. Before he did, however, he revealed a streak of compassion and ordered a small group of prisoners to go free. The prisoners would have been executed otherwise. Later, Hunt realized that he'd made a big mistake, one of the prisoners he freed was Che Guevara, the Cuban revolutionary. Hunt swore that he would never again permit himself to show compassion toward anybody.

"Roosevelt proved a man could be President for life; Truman proved anybody could be President; and Eisenhower proved you don't need to have a President." _ Republican Senator Kenneth Keating.

ALADDIN AND HIS MAGIC LAMP

The Hampstead Players will present "Aladdin and His Magic Lamp" in the Children's Room of the Boston Public Library in Copley Square on Thursday, August 8, at 2:15 p.m.

An exotic adventure set in the mystical orient of bygone years, "Aladdin..." is comedy and adventure, action and fun, a treat to fuel the imagination. The program places an emphasis on audience participation and will be performed in full period costume by two actors who play several roles.

A young English-based touring company in Center Barnstead, New Hampshire, the Hampstead Players are celebrating their eighth year as a touring children's theatre. They have performed in thousands of schools throughout the United States with the aim to educate and entertain as well as to make live theatre part of their young audiences' everyday experiences.

The one-hour program is free and open to the public and is intended for children in grades K through 8. Seating is limited and groups cannot be accommodated. For further information, please contact the Children's Room of the Boston Public Library at (617) 536-5400, Ext. 328.

ART IN BOSTON COURSE AT MIDDLESEX

"American Art in Boston" will be examined in a new course introduced this fall by Middlesex Community College's Open Campus. The three-credit course celebrates the wealth of American painting, sculpture and architecture offered in Boston. Beginning Saturday, September 14, from 9 to 11:45 a.m. the course will run for a 14 week period.

Instructor Karen Quinn is a Curatorial Assistant in the American Paintings Department at the Museum of Fine Arts. "Focusing on Boston proper we will look at the history of painting and architecture in the city as it grew," she commented. The curriculum will focus on such notables as architects Charles Bullfinch and Henry Hobsen Richardson and painters Washington Alston, Fitzhugh Lane, Winslow Homer and John Singer Sargent.

By alternating class lectures with museum trips and walking tours to specific areas of the city including the Waterfront, Back Bay and Beacon Hill, students will be introduced to American Art from the 17th through the early 20th century.

For further information please call (617) 272-7342, Ext. 3240 or (508) 937-5454, Ext. 3240.

MUSEUM COLLECTION THROUGH AUGUST

Now hanging at the New England Quilt Museum, Lowell, the 22-quilt exhibition called "Collection Quilts, Part I" will continue through September 1st. Part of the Museum's permanent collection, the exhibition includes quilts as old as "Palampore" and "Rhode Island Pierce Family Quilt," both made about 1835, and quilts as new as "Archipelago" (1983) and "Bloodroot" (1986).

Located at 256 Market Street in Lowell, the Museum shares the historic Market Mills complex with the Lowell National Historical Park. Closed Mondays, the Museum is open for 10 a.m. till 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and Sunday from noon till four. Museum members attend free, while seniors and student pay $1 and all others pay $2.

Handcraft and Americana buffs will want to know that the current exhibition includes two Amish quilts ("Diamond in a Square," 1890, and "Ohio Amish," 1930.) Devotees of crazy quilts will find two: an 1890 "Victorian Crazy Quilt," and the "Lowell Crazy Quilt," 1893-1904. There are also three signature quilts, including "Mississippi Friendship," 1901, made by neighbors friends and former slaves at the Dixie Plantation, Garden City, Mississippi.

For a walk through needlework history, visitors may take the train from Boston's North Station to Lowell, or may drive via Route 3 or Route 495, taking the Lowell Connector to its exit 5N (Thorndike Street) and following the "Lowell National and State Parks" signs to the free parking lot. The Museum is fully wheelchair accessible.

"GARDEN IN AUGUST" TOPIC OF DISCUSSION

If you're one of those people who wish that gardening would last through the summer and into autumn, then don't miss Strawbery Banke's New England Gardening Day, August 3, when the focus of the program will be "The Garden in August: Late Bloom and Fall Planting."

The day-long program will include a 10:30 a.m. tour of Strawbery Banke's four period gardens by the museum's horticultural staff, followed by a presentation called "Fall is for Planting," by University of New Hampshire professor John Hart, which will take place in the Visitor's Center.

There will be a zucchini contest at high noon -- enter your best zucchini and win fabulous prizes. Categories include biggest zucchini, best maritime zucchini, and zucchini in the best historical costume. In keeping with foods, at 12:30 p.m. Tanya Jackson, of the Bramble Herb Patch Farm, will explore the numerous culinary uses of basil. Also at 12:30 p.m. will be a repeated tour of the four period gardens.

Perennials will be the topic of a presentation given by expert David Chase, former owner of the Golden Glow Nursery of North Yarmouth, Maine. This program will take place in the museum's Visitor Center.

A yearly favorite of New England Gardening Day is the Strawbery Banke Mow-Off, an annual lawn mowing competition using the old fashioned push mowers. The mow-off gets underway at 2 p.m.

Since blueberries are a late summer fruit, there will be a blueberry pie contest. Bring a pie for the contest and receive free admission. After prizes are awarded, slices of the pie will be sold.

New England Gardening Day will conclude with music and a poetry reading in the Thomas Bailey Aldrich Colonial Revival Garden.

Strawbery Banke is a 10-acre, 42-building, nonprofit, historic waterfront, neighborhood museum reflecting four centuries of social change through furnished homes, exhibitions, period gardens, traditional crafts, and special events. For more information about New England Gardening Day or Strawbery Banke Museum in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, please call (603) 433-1100.

FISHERMEN'S LIVES EXPLORED IN PEABODY

Independence, they say, is their most prized possession. Descendants of Elizabethan Englishmen who settled the South Fork of Long Island, the commercial fishermen who harvest the striped bass with their haul-seine nets live on the brink of extinction. Their way of life is threatened by government regulation, pollution of the fishing grounds, and soaring real estate prices in the communities where their ancestors first settled.

In a moving photographic exhibition, Men's Lives, which opens October 10, at the Peabody Museum of Salem, nine professional photographers explore this community and its fate. The project is reflective of a nationwide trend in which fishermen, farmers, and small entrepreneurs are forced out of lifelong traditional occupations with disastrous effects on the community and their lives.

Susan Pollack, essayist and writer for the National Fisherman, will speak at the opening, with a reception to follow. Ms. Pollack's work includes studies on fishing communities along the Eastern seaboard. Admission for the exhibit opening is $3 for museum members, $5 for nonmembers.

Because the exhibit represents the work of different photographers, it reveals a range of viewpoints, featuring portraits of the fishermen and their families, as well as scenes of the men at work. The exhibit runs in the Gallery of Maritime Art in the Loring Room at the Peabody Museum through April 6, 1992.

For information about this program or the museum, please call (508) 745-1876.

ALL-BREED DOG SHOW AUGUST 18

The Greater Lowell Kennel Club will hold their Annual All-Breed Dog Show and Obedience Trial on Sunday August 18 at the 4-H Fairgrounds in Westford.

Directions to Fairgrounds: From Rte. 495 -- take Exit 32 (Boston Rd., Rte. 225); go to Rte. 110. Take left on Rte. 110, and proceed 1/2 mile. Take right on St. Chelmsford Rd. Fairgrounds one mile on right. Follow Purina Dog Show signs.

MEET THE MIDWIVES AT MALDEN HOSPITAL

WomenCare, a medical practice staffed by three certified nurse-midwives and a physician to provide obstetrical care for women throughout their reproductive and childbearing years, will hold a meeting entitled "Meet the Midwives" on Tuesday, August 6 at 7 p.m. in the Malden Room of The Malden Hospital.

During the gathering, midwives Valerie Hodenius, Deborah Gowen and Ellen Israel, who practice at WomenCare in association with Mitchell Levine, M.D., an obstetrician and gynecologist, will discuss their OB/GYN Midwifery practice and answer questions. Hodenius and Gowen both hold master's degrees in

HEAD INJURY HELP LINE

Arlene Korab, President of the Massachusetts Head Injury Association, announced today that Head Injury Help Line Posters are being distributed to all acute care hospitals and rehabilitation centers in Massachusetts. The posters provide the toll free Head Injury Help Line (800-242-0030) for survivors of traumatic head injury and their family members to call for help.

Each year in Massachusetts more than ten thousand persons are hospitalized as a result of a traumatic head injury; of these, approximately 1,200 have severe injuries which may result in a lifetime of physical, cognitive or behavioral difficulties. The anticipated lifetime medical costs for such individuals averages $4,500,000.

To receive a Head Injury Help Line Poster or for more information about head injury, please call toll free at 800-242-0030 or (508) 795-0244. The posters are provided as a community service by the Provider Council of the Massachusetts Head Injury Association, which is committed to improving the quality of life for persons with head injuries and their families and supporting programs to prevent head injuries.

VOLUNTEER FOR EASTER SEAL SOFTBALL GAMES

Many volunteer opportunities exist for people who would like to get involved with the 14th Annual Easter Seal Softball Games. The Games will be held August 10 and 11 at Livingston Field in Tewksbury.

The Games support Easter Seal services for local men, women and children with physical disabilities.

For more information, please cal Easter Seals at (617) 482-3370.

MENDING HEARTS MEETING IN READING

AARP celebrates year end luncheon

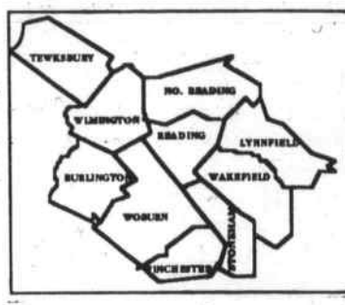

Members and guests of Melrose Chapter #1124 AARP completed their 1990-'91 year with a Luncheon at King's Grant in Danvers.

President Walter Redding presided. Vice-President Beatrice Wadland gave the Invocation after which lunch was served.

Following the lunch, officers and directors for the 1991-'92 year were introduced by President Redding and installed by Associate State Director Louis Brothers.

Frederick Smith, the Philanthropic Committee Chairman, presented a generous check on behalf of the Chapter to Marion Whiting of the Wakefield Council of Friends of the Aging and also to Linda Malonson of the Eastern Middlesex/Tri City Council for Children. Francis McGurn, District Director, presented an interesting and informative talk on Financial Planning for seniors.

John Nunes "One Man Band" provided music for listening and dancing and, judging from the response from members, the afternoon was very successful.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—"By mutual consent, the Lynnfield School Committee, the superintendent of schools and the director of education and finance announce that, given the current fiscal constraints facing the town and the school department, projected salary increases for the two administrators will not be awarded in fiscal year '92."

So reads the prepared press release drafted by Lynnfield Superintendent of Schools Dr. Jeffrey Young, prior to an executive session with the School Committee, which okayed the following also:

"This decision in no way reflects upon the performance of either the superintendent or the director, but rather is a direct outgrowth of budgetary problems. Should fiscal conditions improve, this decision, like the committee's decision not to grant raises to other non-contract personnel in the school system, will be reconsidered."

According to The Lynnfield Villager, FY'91 salary increases for Young and Director of Administration and Finance Sandra Guryan had already caused "something of a stir" in the village: last September, Young received a 15.3 percent increase, making his FY'91 salary $75,000 while Guryan's 11.4 percent increase raised her salary to $55,000.

According to the School Committee, those raises were necessary to "retain quality administrators" at levels like those "in similar school systems across the state."

—In recognition of their outstanding work, the Woburn School Committee has dedicated various sections of the Goodyear Elementary School's "new and improved" library to those individuals and groups of people most instrumental in making the improvements.

The whole library is dedicated to all Goodyear students, past, present and future; the non-fiction section to esteemed School Committee member Carl Torrice; the reference section to Citywide PTO President and Cheerleader Veronica Andrews and all library volunteers; the K-2 Easy Reader Section to former Goodyear teacher Bernadine Bees, and the family members and friends who have made memorial donations in her name; the fiction section to all Goodyear School staff members.

And the information kiosk area to Goodyear School Library Fund Committee Spokesperson Cheryl Willett.

—Wakefield's Atwell School Climate Team found a way to recognize and thank teachers, specialists and other school staff members by encouraging students to draw portraits of staff members, displaying - without names - those portraits on corridor bulletin boards, encouraging everyone to guess who was who, and providing a code for those who might need help.

Students also dedicated a special bulletin board to Principal Margaret McGrath, writing personal messages of thanks to her, thereupon.

—Because there is little walk-in traffic after that time, during the summer, anyone, the Reading School Department's central office has been closing at noon on Fridays - without any reduction in hours for full or part-time employees, thanks to some juggling by Superintendent of Schools Bob Munnelly.

TROPICANA SUMMER'S TOP TEN CRAZIEST EVENTS OF SUMMER

Comedian Robert Klein is on the road as the Tropicana Summer reporter, in pursuit of humor as America celebrates its love affair with the food, fashion, sports, and just plain fun stuff of summer. "I'm especially looking forward to the chicken clucking contest in Baltimore, as that is a specialty of mine. But as far as the toilet bowl races in Centerville, South Dakota, well, I've decided to sit that one out," says Klein. Klein's "top ten" zany events for the summer of 1991 are:

• Chicken Clucking Contest (Baltimore, MD) All ages compete for the "Best Clucker" title. Feathers and chicken body motions are allowed, only clucks are judged. Chicken inspired music.

• Toilet Bowl Races (Centerville, SD) Participants race around a city block seated in porcelain toilets on wheels, using plungers to push their craft.

• World's Greatest Lizard Race (Lovington, NM) A hundred lizards of every shape, size and color race around a wooden track vying for the crown. This is a ruthless race where the larger competitors often cheat by eating their smaller opponents.

• Anything That Floats Rock River Raft Race (Rockford, IL) Creativity, not winning, counts as long as these themed motorless rafts stay afloat. Past entries include a desert island, satellite and hot air balloon.

• International Cherry Pit Spitting Contest (Stevensville, MI) Contestants from around the world compete to see which nation can best "spit the pit." Guinness World Record set in 1988 by "Pellet Gun" Krause at 72' 7 1/2". A pit spitting clinic helps perfect technique.

• Ugly Truck Contest (Pelican Rapids, MN) Truck owners strut their stuff in categories such as most rust and dents, worst paint job, scariest tires, grossest interior and most unusual equipment.

• Elma's Original Slug Festival (Elma, WA) More than 200 slugs race in heats along a plywood track with race track commentary. Out-of-towners rent slugs, residents provide their own.

• Miss Crustacean Beauty Pageant/Hermit Crab Race (Ocean City, NJ) Crabs dress up in creative costumes for judging. Winner crawls down runway while spectators sing Miss America.

• Wacky Watermelon Weekend (Nags Head, NC) Preliminary watermelon bowling and watermelon carving events climax in the giant watermelon drop. Participants toss melons from a 45-foot tower, aiming for a trash can below, then refresh themselves in a giant watermelon sundae.

• Great American Duck Race (Deming, NM) Real ducks race in competition for a $25,000 prize. Owners relax afterward at the Great American Duck Ball, crown the Duck Queen and vote on the best dressed duck.

This list of fun-filled events is courtesy of Tropicana Summer.

Movie Reviews — Rochelle Flynn

"MOBSTERS" "SHORT TAKES"

"Mobsters" Starring Christian Slater, Patrick Dempsey, Richard Grieco, Costas Mandylor. Directed by Michael Karbelnikoff. Produced by Steve Roth. Screenplay by Michael Mahern, Nicholas Kazan. Rated R.

Maybe "Mobsters" will kill off that bandits-in-training genre started by "Young Guns." If nothing else, this mafioso mistake is sure to die at the box office.

"Mobsters" is based on the real-life story of four street thugs who make good by becoming wealthy gangsters. In this paean to crime, the four young upstarts manage to do things their way, bucking a system that doesn't abide inter-racial gangster activity. Two are of Sicilian decent, Charlie "Lucky" Luciano (Christian Slater) and Frank Costello (Costas Mandylor) while two are Jewish, Meyer Lansky (Patrick Dempsey) and Bugsy Siegel (Richard Grieco).

Everything about this film is off kilter. These killers are mercilessly romanticized, as is their "touching" loyalty to one another. They don't fit their parts any better than their costumes -- all four actors look like little boys dressed up in their fathers' clothes.

Slater and Mandylor come out the best, at least there is nothing embarrassing about their performances. Grieco is much too bland to be believable as Siegel, who is supposed to enjoy his job as chief hit man and brawler. Dempsey is just plain laughable as Lansky, playing the part like an elderly ethnic nag. But then Dempsey has yet to turn in a decent performance, despite the many occasions he has been foisted upon the paying public.

First-time director Michael Karbelnikoff went for a highly stylized look that only managed to bloat the film. He chases after atmosphere in a film sadly in need of a strong screenplay. As it stands, the plot veers off into tangents that simply confuse, and bore, the audience.

More interesting is the supporting cast. F. Murray Abraham instills some integrity into his role as a dapper, cunning Jewish gangster. Playing a powerful don, Anthony Quinn is as bombastic as ever, but at least he has spirit. Lara Flynn Boyle (of "Twin Peaks" fame) instills some compassion into her role of a chorus girl in love with Luciano. Christopher Penn (Sean's brother) has a touching death scene and Nicholas Sadler really grabs our attention in the weird role of Mad Dog Coll, a hit man very much into his job.

Although the costumes and backdrops are convincing, the historical research is as muddled as the casting of the film's four stars, resulting in a weak gangster epic that can't stand on its own bootlegs.

SHORT TAKES

V.I Warshawski is so disappointing it practically slaps you in the kisser. Talented, leggy Kathleen Turner is both rugged and believable as novelist Sara Paretsky's independent, feminist private detective. But the plot could have been culled from any of a dozen made-for-TV movies. The story is also as choppily edited and as bland as anything on the small screen. Rated R. **

The Miracle is an amusing, unusual story of two teenagers who wander through their Irish seaside town making up stories about its inhabitants and visitors. When the two meet a mysterious blonde (Beverly D'Angelo) their fantasy world collides with a reality harsher than either could have imagined. The acting is superb and the language is even better, but the plot is a bit far-fetched. Unrated. ***

Another You painfully pairs Richard Pryor and Gene Wilder in a silly story of mistaken identity. The jokes are crude, the acting is lousy and the story makes little sense. This comedy is more likely to depress than amuse. Rated R. *

Dutch is a witless match in which blue blood versus blue collar. Ed O'Neill is the working class stiff who has to transport pampered school boy Ethal Randall from his tony Atlanta boarding school to his mother's home in a chicago. This pathetic road movie is preachy and pandering and none-too-entertaining. Rated PG-13. * 1/2

Bill and Ted's Bogus Journey reunites the goofy, but ultra cool duo of Keanu Reeves and Alex Winter. These two wannabe rock-n-roll musicians do more than trip through time in this outing, they also travel through heaven, hell and several dimensions in between. As silly, and as endearing, as the original, but with much better production values. Rated PG. ***

Regarding Henry is a disappointing outing for Harrison Ford, who plays a snarly lawyer reduced to puppy dog sweetness after suffering a head injury. Directed by a Mike Nichols, who seems to have lost his cynical edge, this sanitized, sentimental film is too good to be true, or honest, or believable. Rate PG-13. **

Point Break is an action-adventure surfing movie starring Keanu Reeves and Patrick Swayze that has a totally ridiculous plot but some fabulous action scenes. Reeves plays an F.B.I. agent out to nab a bunch of bank robbers who use the money to travel around the world in pursuit of an endless summer. Yes, it's as mindless as it sounds, but it sure looks nice. Rated R. * 1/2

101 Dalmatians stars Cruella De Vil, that sweeping, swirling, chain-smoking villainess whose just dying for a spotted fur coat. Campy and witty, this film hasn't aged a bit in 30 years and retains a distinctive look, even for Disney, as the animators outlined everything, even the backgrounds. Rated G ****

Straight Out of Brooklyn is young filmmaker Matty Rich's gritty, autobiographical look at what life is really like for a black family in New York's Red Hook housing projects. Raw and gritty, it aches with honesty and is an impressive, disturbing film from this first-time writer/director/producer/actor. Rated R.  1/2

Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves Kevin Costner is miscast as the swashbuckling hero of this medieval tale, he seems to have wandered over from "Field of Dreams." Nearly the entire cast, with the exception of Morgan Freeman, seems to be in the wrong movie. The performances aren't bad, but nothing quite gels. Still, the action sequences are thrilling and, if nothing else, this flick is as politically correct as it is entertaining. Rated PG-13. ***
